

Laval to Revive Draft Criticizing Repudiation Of Treaty By Germany

French Decision Prompted by Disagreement at Geneva on Text of Resolution in Conversations with Council.

EXPECT SUPPORT

France Prefers Some Form of Condemnation to Unanimously Endorsed Resolution of No Value.

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY.
(Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press)
Geneva, April 16.—Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, created a sensation in League of Nations circles today by announcing he plans to revive the French draft of a resolution criticizing Germany's treaty repudiation through her rearmament program.

The French decision was said to have been prompted by Laval's inability to reach an agreement on the text of the resolution in private conversations with members of the council.

France has decided, it was said, she prefers to get some condemnation of Germany's act even if supported only by a section of the council rather than a unanimously endorsed resolution of no significance.

The French said they expected support for their resolution from Great Britain, Italy, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Turkey, Portugal and possibly Australia and Mexico. They said they believed Denmark, Argentina, Chile and Spain were almost certain to withhold approval. Other sources said Poland might vote against the French resolution.

League officials said they believe there was a possibility that the resolution draft might be re-ramped in the council's private session which will deal with it first.

After a long consideration with the French delegation, Laval decided to introduce France's draft of the resolution at this afternoon's session and deliver a speech in its support.

Only a short time before the foreign minister's announcement, the scheduled session of the council was postponed for five hours to give Laval an opportunity to attempt to win over dissenters.

Danish and Polish opposition to the vigor of the French proposals was said to constitute the principal obstacle to France's design.

The troublesome question, one spokesman said, is whether the league's ultimate resolution should contain "condemnation, a scolding or only an expression of regret at Germany's action, or whether, as the Danes insist, it refrain from mentioning Germany at all."

Road to Rearmament.
The road to rearmament for Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria likewise appeared far from smooth.

While forecasting eventual sanction for the military objectives of the three central European nations, a French spokesman said the Little Entente is still hesitant, feeling there is more security in disarmed neighbors than in the proposed Danubian pact.

Hungary further blocked the projected negotiations for her rearmament when a Hungarian spokesman said his country refused to accept conditions in advance.

Hungary, he said, feels she is entitled to unqualified rearmament now that Germany has shaken off her military restrictions and that any negotiation for security pacts should come afterwards as a separate matter.

This attitude is in direct opposition to the stand of France and the Little and Balkan Ententes as officially stated in last night's communiqué.

Bilateral Pacts.
In view of the dissension in Central Europe, French circles reported the Balkan and Little Ententes are likely to sign bilateral mutual assistance pacts with Austria and Italy in a conference at Rome late in May or possibly even earlier.

The plan of appointing an official reporter or reporters for France, appeal before the council was dropped. Spain made the appointment of Salvador De Madariaga as a reporter conditional on the designation of two co-reporters, but the Danish and Chilean delegates who were suggested as his associates declared they preferred not to be named.

The French draft resolution has not been published, but it is understood it provides that economic and financial sanctions could be applied to treaty repudiators under the punitive clauses of the League covenant in the event of repudiation should endanger peace.

The Associated Press was informed by a French spokesman that the resolution draft as couched at the moment, "condemns the policy" which led to Reichsführer Hitler's rearmament declaration March 16. This phrase, it was said, has been composed carefully so as to seem not to be a condemnation of Germany but of German policy.

Laval worked at length on the draft of the French resolution, seeking a text which will assure the largest number of votes in the council and at the same time not abandon the essentials of the tripartite stress communiqué of the French memorandum appended to the League of Nations.

Democrats At Albany Agree To End Legislature Wednesday

Under Severe Fire From Republicans Today, With Charges That Every Extra Day Costs Taxpayers $7,000, Majority Leaders Agree to Complete 1935 Business—Assemblyman Parsons, Who Led Attack, Praises Steingut for Efforts to Adjourn.

Reservoir Road Bill Now Before Governor

Albany, April 16.—The Wickes-Conway bill, passed unanimously by the lower house last night, which would change ownership of the highway number 28 running north of Kingston toward Phoenicia, for 10 miles, from that of New York city to the state is now before the governor for his approval.

Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, co-introducer, explained that this will give the state the right to keep this road in repair, and that if it is signed there is some possibility of federal funds being used to improve it, in view of the large appropriations anticipated from Washington.

This highway is now owned by the city of New York which has had to keep it in repair, so that this burden of expense has not permitted any great improvement upon it in recent years. As this road is conceded to be a dangerous one because of the heavy traffic it is held that substantial improvements can be readily made if and when the state takes over this obligation.

In a statement made last night Assemblyman Conway urged residents of Ulster county to write to the governor requesting that he sign this bill. Its assembly print number is 431.

Ulster Agricultural Society Plan County Fair Here This Year

The Ulster County Agricultural Society will again hold the county fair this year, after a lapse of one year. This announcement was made by Fred DuBois Monday evening at the annual banquet of the Ulster County Holstein Breeders' Club in New Paltz. The fair will be held at the new armory on North Manor avenue on August 6, 7, and 8.

Mr. DuBois, president of the society, said that the date was rather early but it would be necessary to hold the fair at that time because the artillery horses would be away and the stables and armory would be available on those dates. Albert Kurdt, Farm Bureau manager, is manager of the fair and other committees will be appointed to function.

Last year to county fair was held and members of the Farm Bureau and also members of the 4-H Clubs as well as the cattle breeders were unable to show their produce and it was decided to again hold the fair this year. The armory will be available for exhibits and a huge tent will be secured for the showing of cattle. The only matter of admission will be that charged for admission to the exhibits in the main show in the armory building.

Mr. DuBois urged all interested in the fair to get behind the movement and lend their aid in making it a success. Cattle breeders who expect to exhibit cattle should get in touch with the fair officials early in order that necessary space may be provided in the cattle exhibit tent.

Additional details of the fair will be given as plans develop.

YOUNG LAD DEAD AT TRUESDALE HOSPITAL

Fall River, Mass., April 16 (AP).—William Spiegelblatt, 9, of Newport, R. I., who underwent an operation a few days ago for a disarrangement of internal organs similar to that of Alcyce Jane McHenry, died at 5 a. m. today at the Truesdale Hospital.

The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Spiegelblatt and was known as "Buddy." He had been at the hospital several days before his presence was known and the operation for diaphragmatic hernia was performed at Truesdale Hospital Saturday.

At that time, Dr. Philomen E. Truesdale, head of the hospital, said no information would be given on Buddy's operation or subsequent condition.

Doctors at the hospital said Buddy's condition had not been normal, that he had suffered rheumatic fever three years ago and that this affected his heart.

For 48 hours, the boy's condition appeared favorable, but he weakened during the night.

He was the third child operated upon at the hospital for a ruptured diaphragm since March 1.

Albany, N. Y., April 16 (AP).—Under fire from Republicans for prolonging the session and a feud within their own ranks brought out into the open, Democratic leaders today agreed to adjourn New York's 1935 legislature tomorrow.

The leaders decided to keep the lawmakers at work all night, if necessary, so that adjournment can be accomplished before noon tomorrow.

Many of the members want to return to their homes by nightfall tomorrow for the beginning of the Jewish Passover.

The agreement was reached at a conference between Democratic Senate Leader John J. Dunnigan, Democratic Assembly Floor Leader John F. Killgrew and Republican Assembly Leader Irving M. Ives.

The announcement was greeted with a chorus of "Hurrahs" by the lawmakers, who had hoped to be out of the capitol by last Saturday.

Just before the conference, Assembly Republicans called upon Governor Lehman and the Senate leadership to force immediate adjournment.

Rising to a point of high personal privilege as the Assembly reconvened for the day, Assemblyman George W. Parsons, Onondaga Republican, placed the blame for prolongation of the session "on the leadership of the Senate and the governor of the state of New York."

Democratic Senate Leader John J. Dunnigan scrapped adjournment plans late Saturday to give, he said, more consideration to Mayor La Guardia's transit unification program and consider the appropriation for the utility investigating committee.

He has asked Governor Lehman to recommend $600,000 as an appropriation for the committee to continue its work another week.

Parsons' bitter attack followed denial by Governor Lehman of reports he had "talked" to answer the utility investigating committee's questionnaire.

The chief executive's statement came after published reports purporting to come from a source close to the utilities committee of which Dunnigan is chairman.

The Onondaga Republican explained he believed the blame should be placed on the responsible parties so that "the rest of us will not be the target of criticism."

"I have received many very critical letters," he said, "because of the prolongation of the session and I resent it."

Lands Steingut
Parsons lauded Speaker Irwin Steingut for the manner in which he has driven at top speed to reach adjournment.

"If you will but look at the calendar for today," he asserted, "you will see we have nothing but a few old chestnuts to go over that have been hanging fire for weeks."

"Thus, we can do nothing but place the finger of blame on the leadership of the Senate and upon the governor of the state of New York."

Steingut, who is at odds with Dunnigan over several remaining issues, interrupted.

"There is no occasion for you to make any attack on any one," he ruled. "You may defend yourself from any criticism you have received."

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, veteran New York Democrat, was on his feet immediately.

"I agree, Mr. Speaker," he said. "This is nothing but a political speech."

Parsons, after saying he felt the chair should not rule him out of order, agreed to end his attack.

"Since you refuse to allow me to place the blame across the capitol and downstairs where it belongs," he shouted, "I will withdraw my request."

The senate is across the capitol and Governor Lehman's office is downstairs.

Stays Republican
Charleston, W. Va., April 16 (AP).—The Republican party maintained its hold on Charleston's municipal government today under the leadership of 37-year-old Daniel Boone Dawson. The present Republican administration will give way on May 6 to another group of Republicans who swept Democratic opposition before them in yesterday's municipal election. The Republicans will install at the same time one of the youngest administrations in the state capital's history. They won the offices of city treasurer, judge, five councilmen-at-large seats and a big majority of the ward council seats.

Presbytery Voted To Defendants Arraigned Delete Mention of War Before Judge Tracy In From Its Confession County Court, Monday

To Overtake General Assembly To Amend Old Westminster Confession Which Had Not Been Amended Since 17th Century.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

Changing Times Cited To Show Need of Revision at Spring Meeting Held Here.

After spirited debate both for and against the Presbytery of the North River at its spring meeting which opened this morning in the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street voted in favor of an overture addressed to the General Assembly of the church requesting that all mention of war be deleted from the old Westminster Confession of Faith which the Presbyterian Church in the world has used since the 17th Century, without revision. Those who favored the adoption of the overture called attention to changing times and said that today world conditions were much different than when the Westminster Confession became a vital part of the doctrine of the Presbyterian Church.

Briefly stated the Westminster Confession of Faith states that a member of the Presbyterian Church may lawfully go to war for a just cause. The overture which was adopted after considerable oratory both for and against, eliminates all mention of war from the confession.

The purpose of the overture to amend the Westminster Confession of Faith is to give Presbyterian students in state universities the same standing given a Quaker or Methodist if they desire to seek exemption from military training.

The Presbytery Church believes in peace said several of the ministers who voted against the adoption of the overture, but it also believes that a member of the church should be willing to fight for his home and country. The ministers who voted for the overture stated that they also believed that, but the adoption of the overture would not place the church on record as favoring war as it does in the Westminster Confession.

The Rev. Irving M. Haynes of Wappingers Falls, moderator of the Presbytery, presided at the meeting this morning, which was opened with a half hour's devotional service led by the Rev. Goodrich Gates, pastor of the entertaining church.

Following the devotional service the Presbytery quickly got down to business and transacted considerable routine business as well as other matters that were brought up.

The Rev. Charles M. Moser of Pine Plains, chairman of the committee on vacancies and supplies, reported that the committee recommended that the moderators of Presbyterian Churches in the Presbytery be named as follows:

Andrusdale—The Rev. Charles M. Moser.

Salisbury Mills—The Rev. Murdoch J. Maciver.

Hughsonville—The Rev. Irving M. Haynes.

New Hamburg—The Rev. Howard W. McKinley.

Milton—The Rev. Devello S. Haynes.

Amenia—The Rev. Benjamin C. Bentley.

Millerton—The Rev. Arthur Jones.

The report was unanimously approved by Presbytery.

A recess was then taken until this afternoon and the delegates to the Presbytery were entertained at dinner in the church hall served by the ladies of the church.

No Shorts in Putney.
Putney, Vt., April 16 (AP).—Residents of Putney don't approve of bathing suits and "shorts" for street attire, and so the Repertory Playhouse Associates of New York will not come here this summer. Edward J. Shea, counsel for the organization, said today the Putney community center had decided not to allow the Associates further use of its headquarters because of the abbreviated costumes worn by the young men and women, 70 of whom were here last year. The Associates had held rehearsals at Putney for the past three summers but will remain in New York this year, Shea said.

District Attorney Made Several Arraignments of Defendants Under Indictments Handed Up To Supreme Court Last Month.

CIVIL CALENDAR

Court Adjourns Until Wednesday at 10 a. m. When a Civil Calendar Will Be Taken Up.

Judge Tracy of Columbia county found a rather heavy criminal calendar facing him Monday afternoon when he reconvened the April term of county court here. Judge Tracy is presiding in the absence of County Judge Traver who is still confined to his home by illness. Criminal matters were taken up Monday afternoon and then court adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at which time a civil calendar will be taken up.

District Attorney Cleon B. Murray made several arraignments of defendants under indictments handed up to the supreme court last month.

William Styles was arraigned on a charge of burglary, third degree, for the entering of the King place of business on Prince street on December 8, last. He was also arraigned on a charge of grand larceny, second degree, growing out of the same offense. Thomas Plunkett appeared and entered a plea of not guilty for Styles and bail was fixed at $1,500.

Thomas McCann, Robert Long, Jr., and Thomas Long were arraigned on charges of burglary, third degree, and unlawful entry to the Matthews storehouse on January 10, last. All entered pleas of not guilty and bail was continued.

Raymond DuBois, Raymond Smith and Fred Brink were arraigned on charges of burglary, third degree, and unlawful entry alleged to have been committed on February 10, last, when the Brusten Distributing Company place was entered and two cases of beer found missing. DuBois and Smith were represented by William D. Brimmer, and entered pleas of not guilty. Bail was continued. The lads reside in Kingston.

Lloyd R. LeFevre appeared for Brink and entered a plea of not guilty and asked that bail be fixed, that he be provided with a copy of the indictment and that he be given 10 days to make further motions. Granted. Bail was fixed at $1,000.

Enter Pleas of Not Guilty
Sumner Olmstead, Esther Olmstead and Delancey O'Banks were arraigned on charges of arson, second degree, in two counts, alleged to have taken place on Shandaken 12, 1934, in the town of Shandaken. On that date a bungalow of the Olmsteads was burned in Fox Hollow. Judge Joseph M. Fowler appeared for Esther Olmstead. Pleas of not guilty were entered by all three and bail was continued. O'Banks was given until Thursday afternoon to get counsel and in the event of his failure counsel will be assigned by the court.

Raymond Kelder of Olive was arraigned on a charge of burglary, third degree, alleged to have been committed on January 14, last. Kelder and another lad are charged with having entered a building in Olive and removing from a carcass of a recently killed cow a couple of juicy tenderloin steaks. Kelder's companion was previously arraigned. Kelder entered a plea of guilty and he will be sentenced Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. In the meantime he will remain in custody of the sheriff.

Joseph Porcaro of Lloyd charged with having taken a car from Lloyd on December 20, was arraigned on a charge of grand larceny, second degree, in two counts. It is charged that he started out on a trip and at Hastings in his haste struck a truck which resulted in his arrest. He entered a plea of not guilty and bail was continued.

Hyman Margolin of Wappingers failed to appear in court for arraignment and unless he shows up on Thursday a bench warrant will be issued.

John Schmidt of Sleightburgh was arraigned on a charge of grand larceny, first degree, alleged to have taken place on March 31, 1933. It is alleged he took money from a Kingston chauffeur. A plea of not guilty was entered and bail was fixed. Roseve V. Elsworth appears for defendant.

DePuy Up Again
Charles DePuy of Sagerties again came up before the court under a failure to provide indictment. He was warned that he must support his family or go to jail. District Attorney Murray told the court that DePuy had been before the court several times and had given much trouble.

Judge Tracy warned DePuy that unless he took care of his family between now and the June term something unpleasant would happen to him. DePuy, always a ready talker in court, started to argue with the court and the court directed the sheriff to remove the defendant within the rail and he departed. Judge Tracy warned DePuy that not only must he provide for his family but he must place himself in better physical condition and provide a better report from the parole officer.

Benjamin Castellano of Highland, indicted for rape, second degree, entered a plea of guilty to assault in the second degree.

Would Limit NRA Act To Interstate Commerce

Harrison Gets Warning From White House Today

Washington, April 16 (AP).—As Senator Harrison (D-Miss.) sought to complete a compromise bonus bill which he said would have President Roosevelt's approval, an informal warning was given at the White House today against committing the chief executive to any legislation of that type.

It was said at the White House that Mr. Roosevelt would speak when and if the bonus bill is sent to him for signing or disapproval.

The prediction of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, that Mr. Roosevelt would send a message to the Senate on the bonus failed to receive affirmation at the White House.

Mr. Roosevelt said last week he might send a message and he might not and there it stood today.

The Mississippi, who conferred with the President Sunday, said he would offer the measure today if he could complete it in time. He indicated the Senate finance committee, of which he is chairman, would conduct brief hearings next week and report it quickly to the Senate.

Lieut. Barringer in Second Glider Attempt Forced Down in Swamp

Lieut. Lewin B. Barringer of Philadelphia took off at Mt. Mongia, near Ellenville, at 5:54 this morning in a second, but unsuccessful, attempt to break the distance record for gliders.

He flew the same soaring plane, the Albatross II, with which he made the first attempt on April 3, at which time he flew from Mt. Mongia to Pikeville, Pa., a distance of 15 1/2 miles. The record is 15 1/2 miles.

Lieut. Barringer made a beautiful start, circled for altitude and again headed up the Rondout Valley toward Port Jervis. The wind was strong, almost too strong, it is reported, and he made fast time. State Troopers, under arrangement with Sergeant Hopkins, were watching for his arrival at Wurtsboro and about 20 minutes after the take-off the glider was reported passing over the mountain at Wurtsboro, headed for Port Jervis. At the time it was estimated that the glider was making about 50 miles per hour.

About an hour afterward District Attorney Cleon B. Murray, who had been cooperating in arrangements for the flight received a telephone call from Lieut. Barringer at Sussex, N. J. The latter stated that he had been forced to land at Coleville, N. J., but that he was unhurt and his plane had suffered no damage.

The flight had continued successfully until the plane reached the vicinity of High Point, the highest point in New Jersey, about opposite Port Jervis. Here something happened, the glider encountered a strong downdraft and the forced landing followed.

Sergeant Hopkins and Mr. Murray drove at once to Coleville, when it was found that the landing had been made in a swamp near that place. Word received not long before noon said that the glider had not yet been gotten out of the swamp where it landed. Lieut. Barringer, with the glider, was to return to Ellenville, but it was not learned whether he would make another attempt at the record.

Mr. Murray reported that the fier must have done some fine work in bringing his machine down safely under all the circumstances. Further, good fortune must have been with him in getting out of the swamp where he landed by only a few feet and came to a stop only eight feet or so from a large fallen tree.

He devised a system of legs to enable a vessel to walk over shoals. The invention got through the patent office, but the records fail to show that it ever got a ship through shallows.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce Would Extend NRA With Modifications Limiting Its Operation To Interstate Commerce.

RECOMMENDATIONS

President of Chamber Declares Too Much Had Been Attempted Under the Original Act.

Washington, April 16 (AP).—Extension of NRA with modifications limiting its operation to interstate commerce was recommended to Congress today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Henry L. Harriman, president of the chamber, told the Senate finance committee his faith in the "basic principles" of NRA was unchanged, though too much had been attempted under the original act.

The scholarly appearing business leader recommended a number of changes in the law, including a limitation on its scope to "business engaged in or affecting interstate commerce."

The chamber, Harriman said, favors the open shop. He added that the right of employees to bargain collectively or individually exists without writing it into the law.

Harriman said there was a division of opinion within the chamber on granting powers to impose limited codes, but he felt the President should have authority to impose codes regulating child labor, maximum hours, minimum wages and collective bargaining.

Only four or five senators were on hand for the testimony of industry's leading spokesman, but the spectator's seats were filled as usual. Harriman recalled he had testified for the original recovery law, but he said too much had been expected of that act and too much had been attempted under it.

Outlining the chamber's proposals, Harriman recommended the act should be temporary, should be limited to business engaged in or affecting interstate commerce and that the government should have power to approve or disapprove codes submitted by industry but not to modify them or impose them.

All codes, he said, should cover child labor, hours, wages and collective bargaining. But Harriman contended price fixing and production controls should not be permitted except in rare instances where large surpluses accumulated.

JURY ACQUITS FRANK ATKINS OF DRUNKEN DRIVER CHARGE.
A jury in city court Monday evening brought in a verdict of not guilty after hearing the evidence in the charge lodged by the police against Frank Atkins, 65, of New street, who was arrested recently on a charge of operating his automobile while intoxicated. Atkins, testifying in his own behalf, denied that he was intoxicated and said all he had had to drink that night was five glasses of beer. Robert H. Loughran appeared for the police department and Francis T. Murray for Atkins.

Clashed Over Relief.
New York, April 16 (AP).—Mayor La Guardia and Borough President George L. Harvey of Queens clashed today over the city's relief administration. The mayor charged Harvey with "making misstatements" and giving false information about relief in his borough. Harvey, learning of the mayor's fury, said, "The mayor doesn't know what he is talking about. I'll be on the witness stand at the aldermanic investigation next week with the facts and figures and I'll prove that I'm right." The issue was Harvey's declaration last night to an American Legion post that he accomplished more on $1,000,000 relief funds than the city on $7,000,000. Contradicting Harvey in a letter, the aldermanic investigation.

Over $12,000 Found.
New York, April 16 (AP).—Dim books and crannies of a musty old brownstone house where Mary V. Welsh, 40, lived and died in the early 20's, yielded $12,935.23 in loose currency, sources reported early today. The body of the aged woman, fully clothed, was found yesterday on the floor of the front room of her house where neighbors said she lived a reclusive. A physician said death resulted from natural causes.

"More Cold
than you'll ever need"

The Norge Rollator Refrigerator is powered to make more cold than you'll ever need. A Norge will freeze ice in a warm room in midsummer, with the refrigerator door open!

There are indispensable advantages in having this surplus of cold-making power. Economy, for one thing. Since the Rollator seldom works to capacity, it uses little current to meet every day requirements. And of course you can always depend upon a refrigerator that is surplus powered.

Reserve power however is not the only quality feature of the Rollator Compressor, the cold-making mechanism. It is engineered, designed, built to give more years of dependable refrigeration. On factory test, a Rollator Compressor has been running constantly for the equivalent of 33 years in your home. And the Rollator in today's Norge is actually improved over the one undergoing this test.

Everything you expect of a refrigerator depends upon the performance of the mechanism that makes the cold. Remember that only Norge has the Rollator Compressor. See the Norge before you buy.

THE ROLLATOR COMPRESSOR
... smooth, easy, rolling power instead of the horrid back-and-forth action of the ordinary refrigerator mechanism. Result—more cold for the current used and a mechanism which actually improves with use.

Baruch Clarifies His Stand on War Profits To Avoid Controversy

New York, April 16 (AP)—Declaring he has "no desire to engage in controversy with Senator Nye or anybody else," Bernard M. Baruch made a final summation today of his stand on taking the profits out of war.

"Although I may differ with others as to methods," said the chairman of the war industries board in the World War in an interview, "my position for taking the profits out of war has not changed one iota and briefly is as follows:

"1. Put a ceiling over prices that will prevent a rise and protect the government and the civilian population whose needs must be second only to those of our fighting forces. The President is to make whatever adjustment is necessary.

"2. Place a tax that will take practically all the profits from war activities.

"3. Raise all corporate and income taxes to the highest point possible but not so that they will stop the flow of munitions to our soldiers, and the production of necessities for our home civilian population.

"4. The power that the President now has to commandeer in time of war should be broadened to include the licensing, control and regulation of transportation, industry and finance. Let us get this power now, and if a constitutional amendment through an excess of caution is necessary let us have the one.

Baruch said "All this is a must—arrange so that as far as possible we can pay as we fight and win with the least possible change in our economic structure."

The speculator, saying he wanted to make no further comment on his advocacy of wartime profit-control legislation, made today's statement in the midst of preparations to leave town for several weeks.

"That's all from me," he said, "now I want to get away for a few weeks and finish my book."

His autobiography, he said, is now about half finished.

Federal Officials In Dust Storm Belt

(By The Associated Press)

State and federal officials obtained first hand information about dust storms today while a silt and sand haze hung over the nation's dust bowl.

Arriving in the midst of a dust storm, M. L. Wilson, assistant secretary of agriculture, and Gov. Al. M. Landon of Kansas, started a survey of the stricken area at Colby, Kas., Monday.

"We were impressed with the need for even more vigorous action," said Governor Landon after viewing the results of the listing program inaugurated to prevent soil blowing.

"Apparently it will be necessary to list not only a great many more acres but much heavier because of the financial condition of many farmers in the area that is blowing. They are unable to work at soil control with an appropriation of only 19 cents per acre."

Communities far to the west of the area were showered with dust Monday. Schools were closed at Trinidad, Colo.; mountain highways were shrouded by a dust fog, while at Grantville, in the western part of Utah, airplane and motor car traffic was halted. Two army aviators from Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., were forced down by the dust at Ogden, Utah.

Basil Powell, 32, Dalhart, Tex., was killed near Springfield, Colo., when his motor car was wrecked in a huge dust cloud.

Baca county, Colorado, commissioners decided to appeal to the Red Cross for nurses to help care for the sick.

MR. HEMSTREET TO CARRY ON MRS. HEMSTREET'S CLASS HERE

Announcement of the time and place for seeing Mr. Hemstreet will be announced later.

Gloria's Legacies Again.

New York, April 16 (AP)—Little Gloria Vanderbilt's legacies bobbed up in surrogate's court again today, this time with her property guardians opposing Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, her custodian, and Cornelius Vanderbilt in the liquidation of a trust fund. The guardians, George W. Wickensham and Thomas B. Gilchrist, object to an accounting filed by Mrs. Whitney and Vanderbilt as the executors of Mrs. Alice C. Vanderbilt's estate. Gloria, a granddaughter of Mrs. Vanderbilt, is one of the beneficiaries. Gloria's guardians object particularly to the transfer of securities valued at $6,740,045 to the United States Trust Company, successor to Mrs. Vanderbilt as trustee, on the ground that the figure is an inventory valuation, not market value. They also oppose payment of $11,000 to the executors for legal and accounting expenses.

Freighter Damaged

Welles, N. S., April 16 (AP)—The British freighter Tower Bridge, damaged in collision with an iceberg off Newfoundland last week, arrived in port today, listing slightly to starboard, her bow low in the water and her engine working full speed to keep pace with the task of the water in the forward hold. The 5,161-ton freighter was escorted by tug to the shipyard for temporary repairs to her hull. She will undergo complete overhauling in New York later.

Ickes Bears Down On Louisiana Works

Washington, April 16 (AP)—In a scathing attack on Senator Long (D-La.), Secretary Ickes today threatened to cancel all public works projects in Louisiana if legislation is passed to give the state authority over local projects.

Referring to Long as "the emperor of Louisiana," Ickes said at a press conference:

"PWA funds haven't been used to set up a political machine anywhere and they won't be used that way in Louisiana—they certainly won't be used to build up Senator Long's political machine."

Specifically, Ickes said a $1,500,000 PWA allotment had been made to the New Orleans sewer and water board, and if it was dissolved "there isn't any contract and we'll take back the money."

"Of course," he added sarcastically, "it means keeping a lot of people out of work. Apparently the Senator is in favor of sharing wealth but not sharing work."

Ickes referred to the Louisiana legislature, now considering a loan measure to give the state authority over expenditure of federal funds by localities, as the "Longiature."

Asked if other allotments besides the New Orleans sewer project might be cancelled, Ickes replied:

"They might create a situation down there where all allotments would be cancelled."

Rockefeller Heiress Working for a Living

New York, April 16 (AP)—Another Rockefeller heiress is working for her living.

Mary Adeline Prentice, granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., is putting into use the nursing training which she acquired in a special course after her graduation from Vassar. She has obtained a job as office nurse and secretary to a society physician.

Her parents, E. Parmelee Prentice and the former Alta Rockefeller, are reported to have objected at first, but finally relented to the point of allowing their 25-year-old daughter to maintain her own apartment as well as work for her living.

Two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Rockefeller set the precedent. Miss Isabel Rockefeller, who later became Mrs. Frederic W. Lincoln, Jr., was an instructor in biology at Teachers College, Columbia University, ten years ago. Miss Faith Rockefeller was an athletic instructor in a Connecticut girls' school.

Planting Rules

Except along the west coast and in states where the Mason and Dixon line, spring planting of roses generally is most satisfactory. Usually, dormant plants or plants grown in pots are set out. A few good transplanting rules are: Dig plants carefully to prevent mutilation of root system; keep roots moist until set; set only in holes large enough to permit natural position of the roots; do not place any manure in direct contact with the roots; see that the soil is not too wet; and be sure it is thoroughly compacted about the roots.

THE "THIRD ECONOMY."

Rexford G. Tugwell, under-secretary of agriculture in charge of an important section of federal work relief, tosses a new idea onto the debating platform. He insists on facing facts. The facts, as he sees them, are as follows: "Technological unemployment" or machine-made idleness will not be wiped out by business recovery. He expects a surplus of no less than 5,000,000 men to remain when the $4,000,000-000 of work relief money is spent.
 It will still be necessary to provide work for them, unless we and they are content with a dole.

For their maintenance, he suggests, there must be a definite and perhaps permanent system of useful public employment. This system he calls a "third economy," standing midway between Capitalism and Socialism and representing neither.
 State Socialism nor private profit.
 It would occupy a field of useful public undertakings which could not be handled by private enterprise because their development would take too long or they would not return values measurable in dollars. They would, however, be expected to give adequate return for the outlay by adding to the national wealth and conserving our human resources.

"The third economy," he says,
 "can be invoked on the basis of sound historical experience to justify enthusiasm for the program of public works and rehabilitation by which the administration is combating the depression." It may be regarded as starting with the present work relief program. It is possible to maintain such a social group in public service, he maintains, and it is necessary. In checking soil erosion, planting forests, developing power and reclamation projects, providing sanitary and recreational facilities, improving housing conditions, and so on, there is "work for at least 5,000,000 men as far ahead as we can see." As for the alternative:

Manpower, when released from current production, demands to be used and will be used. If not for social and constructive purposes,
 then for military and imperial purposes. This is the lesson of history.

He thinks we can avoid future disaster by concentrating on a big program of domestic development,
 through these economic soldiers,
 before a new urge for imperialist expansion begins. This suggestion is, to many Americans, unexpected and disquieting. It calls for calm discussion. If we can avoid a permanent surplus of man-power by absorption of the unemployed without much longer delay in private enterprise, very well; if not, is there a better plan?

COLLEGE PACIFISM

The anti-war demonstrations in scores of American colleges last week gave new evidence that our college students are growing up. They take more interest in mature things.
 They act more like citizens and less like children. They reflect advanced public attitudes on vital present problems.

The passion for peace that they exhibit, and the feeling that something can really be done about it, is as new in the colleges as it is in American homes. In all our wars the students have rushed to enlist. If present signs indicate a real change of attitude, they will not do so again.
 Not only will they not volunteer, but they will resist military draft, unless they are convinced that a threatened war is genuinely defensive and ineluc-table.

Now are they going to fight militarianism effectively, when patriots and misadvised statesmen begin beating the drums? Perhaps as good a hint as was given by Oswald Garrison Villard in addressing one of the student mass-meetings, when he said:

Youth everywhere should have the right to decide whether it shall be sacrificed in the next world war which is now brewing. No government should have the right to send its sons to death on the battle field without at least getting their consent.

Youth may soon demand this right.
 The nation as a whole may come to demand, as a reasonable thing in a free, democratic, peace-loving country, that no declaration of war shall become effective without approval in a national referendum.

WHAT ARE WE HERE FOR?

It is hard to follow Arthur Bribane when, in a recent editorial column, he undertakes to answer the question: "For what object am I in this world of suffering and unjustice?" "You are here," he says, "to honor your father and mother by working as hard as you can, without asking too many questions."

It has been our observation that young men and women who keep their noses to the grindstone, and don't ask questions, seldom get very far. The successful ones seem to be those who don't work so long and hard but that they have time and energy to think; and the more they think, the more inquisitive they become and the more they find out. In this way come change, enterprise and progress.

One of the ablest business men we ever heard of was a young fellow who seemed very lazy. A friend who was very industrious, but somehow not much of a money-maker, described him as follows: "Jim is a fellow who will sit in his swivel chair, smoking, with his feet on his desk, for two weeks, then go out and make $10,000." But this doesn't necessarily answer Mr. Brisbane's question.

MINERAL FOOD NECESSARY.

One of the mistakes made by one suffering with indigestion and constipation is thinking that if he or she does with as small amount of food as possible it will be "easier"
 on the digestive organs and there will not be as much wastes from the food left in the large intestine.

Thus he keeps such a constant watch on his food intake and the amount of waste that is removed,
 that it "gets on his mind", and actually affects his mental as well as his physical health. This fear of eating and of the accumulation of wastes can lessen the ability of the digestive tract to do its work and also cause constipation.

Those who, because of fear or because of actual disease of the digestive tract, suffer much from indigestion keep leaving out their diet one food after another that they think disagrees with them until they come to subsist upon a very restricted diet. In general the diet becomes so poor from the chemical standpoint, that malnutrition and loss of weight results.

The nervous system needs a definite amount of certain foods and when these are not eaten, the nervous system can be definitely harmed. The foods containing mineral salts are especially necessary to the nervous system and as you know the nerves regulate the body processes. Thus these nervous, inward looking, excitable and emotional individuals should make sure of a liberal supply
 daily of foods containing minerals.

The foods rich in minerals are milk, cheese, leafy vegetables, egg yolk, whole grains, liver, sea foods,
 nuts, dried fruits, fresh fruits.

The foods poor in mineral salts
 are fat pork, bacon, lard and suet, butter, salad oil, sugars, confectionery, purified starches and white flours.

Fortunately no harm comes from eating an excess of these mineral foods.

If the amounts of fruits and vegetables, eggs and meat in the diet must be limited on account of the expense it is wise to use whole grain breads and breakfast cereals instead of those made from highly milled grains.

"The way to make sure of providing a safe surplus of mineral elements is to include in each day's menu liberal amounts of one or two foods rich in each of the mineral elements calcium, phosphorus, and iron as mentioned above."

GREAT RICHES
by Mabel House Freeman

SYNOPSIS: It won't be long
 New Concord feels before the brilliant match made of eligible New Concord had a hard time making the marriage of James Stimson and Jane Northing. Jane was a distinctly more than a match for money for James, and although James has long ago put away all thought of Leslie Harris, he must admit that Leslie and not Jane,
 might have been the wife for him.

Chapter 23
LESLIE'S QUESTION

LESLIE HARRIS had never married, to Miss Julia Pratt's keen and continued disappointment.
 About the time of the birth of the Stimson twins she had gone to Kansas City, and as the local paper put it, "accepted" a position in Kansas City's largest department store.
 There, to New Concord's amazed surprise, she had in five or six years worked up from a humble clerk in the basement to the assistant to the head of the department of women's wear, and twice a year went East with the buyer to help select gowns and frocks.

All of the feminine half of New Concord who could afford it, except Jane Stimson, bought their gowns and frocks from Leslie as a matter of course. It was decided that this not inconsiderable patronage was responsible for Leslie's success.
 How else could a simple little clerk like Leslie have attained to such business eminence?

Leslie, as a dressmaker's daughter, had imbibed a natural pattern about lines and colors and styles from her babyhood and she did know how to wear her clothes, but of course she was not really clever.
 It was said that she made seventy dollars a week, but New Concord did not believe this. How could she?
 Not half the professional men in her home town made so much.

Leslie continued to spend every other Sunday with her mother and father. She came one warm April afternoon to bring Miss Julia some yellow and lavender tulips. "Seems like your flowers always do better than mine," Miss Julia grumbled as she arranged her gift in a vase.
 "Even though you're not here to look after them properly."

"They know how much I count on them," Leslie laughed. "I tell them I cannot bear it in the city unless I know they're here blooming for me. And then of course Father does take wonderful care of them. He's a better gardener than I ever was."

"It's a fine thing for your father
 ... for any man, digging and planting in the good warm earth."

"It keeps him busy," Leslie said.
 And changed the subject. A little later she had drifted over to the table where the vase stood and by pulling a tulip here, loosening another there, had changed a stiff unhappy bunch of suffering blooms to a lovely group that relaxed gratefully in the sunshine.

With her nose buried in the tulips, Leslie said, "Miss Julia, what's the matter with Jimmy ... with James Stimson?"

"Matter? I don't know that anything's the matter. What do you mean?"

LESLIE turned and seated herself on the edge of the table,
 facing Miss Julia. "He's so changed.
 You must see it. I sat behind him in church. He looked so ... so dispirited. And there are such deep lines ... bitter lines around his mouth. Is it Jane who's done this to him? Or what?"

"I don't know. I don't think so.
 Jane's made him a wife. Everyone says so. I suppose the trouble is, if there is any, that we all expected too much of James in the beginning. He expected too much of himself. And now he's old enough to realize that he's just ... just another run of the mill and nothing out of the way. I dare say it hurts."

"I don't think that's fair, Miss Julia. It seems to be the fashion in New Concord to belittle everything James does. He's only thirty-one or two and already he's made a name ... a small name, but a name
 ... all over this section for his sound sense and trustworthiness and his real ability as a leader in court.
 Mr. Ellison bears all the newspaper gossip. He says James has won cases that would do credit to any city lawyer of twice his age. And he's made a living, a fine living for a country town. Why then does New Concord laugh at him? Why do they dare refer to him as 'poor James'?"

"Because James doesn't value himself enough. I suppose. If a man doesn't think any too well of himself I've noticed that nobody else does."

"James thought well enough of himself before he was married.
 Miss Julia, you know as well as I that it's Jane. I only see him at long intervals. And every time I can notice the change. Jane is murdering him by inches."

"Yes, I mean just that. It's nothing short of murder to kill a man's self respect, his belief in himself.
 Miss Julia, can't you do something?
 Talk to Jane. Make her see that what she does to James she does to herself. If James' life is a failure, Jane's life is a failure, too. She doesn't seem to realize that, though it's so obvious. Someone must wake her up. Point it out to her."

"There may be something in what you say," Miss Julia said uneasily.
 "Jane isn't always as tactful as she might be. Perhaps she doesn't believe him just right, though I know she means the best in the world."

"And you will talk to her?"

"I'll try. I'm afraid it will be difficult."

Miss Julia went to call on Jane and as Jane had expected her, she had tea in the back parlor. Jane was in a good humor. It always pleased her to have an occasion to use her beautiful silver tea service.

Miss Julia in her embarrassment ate five sandwiches and a large piece of chocolate cake before she could gather courage to broach the subject which had inspired her visit.
 At last she put down her cup, pushed back her plate and plunged in head foremost.

"JANE," she said, "I've come here to talk to you frankly about James and I'm scared to death I've been interested in James since before he was born. It occurred to me the other day that you, you and I and all of us who love James, haven't been quite fair to him. Because we expected so much of him, expected miracles perhaps, we've got into the habit of making light of the very substantial things James has already accomplished."

Miss Julia went on to quote Leslie, enlarging on James' past and present achievements. Jane listened impatiently, studying Miss Julia's embarrassed face curiously.

"Certainly James has made a living," Jane said, dryly. When Miss Julia paused, "So have most of the men of his age and condition. With the Judge to push him and his grandfather's name behind him I don't see how he could have helped
 it. But I confess I expected more from James than a bare living."

"I hardly call this exactly bare," commented Miss Julia tartly with an appraising glance at the richly furnished room.

"You know perfectly well Father gave me this house. If I had to depend on what James made I'd be living in a dump."

"You'd be living in James' own house ... one of the handsomest houses in town."

"Yes, out in Niggerville with dinkies for neighbors. No thank you."

"Jane, I didn't come here to quarrel with you and I don't mean to. I'm fond of you and I admire you. But as an old woman twice your age
 I've naturally learned a few things you haven't yet got around to."

"One of them is that men are a lot more sensitive and a whole lot more vain than women. If you hurt that vanity and that sensitiveness they never amount to much. Women are tougher. They can stand a good deal of beating. But a man can't
 ... and be anything of a man."

"Are you implying that I beat my husband?"

"Not consciously, my dear. But every time you remind him of your father's superior luxuries it's a lash of the whip. And every time you say what you just said to me, that if you were dependent on James you would be living in a dump, you make other people think less of him. That's only common sense, my child. You've got plenty of common sense. Think it over and you'll find that I'm right."

"Has James been complaining to you? Or is it the Judge? That dedering old idiot always has hated me. Always has been jealous of me.
 I suppose James wishes to him and he passes it on to you."

"You know how James was brought up? Fed with a silver spoon, waited on, deferred to like a little king."

Politics at Random

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

THIRD-PARTY talk is prominent in every smoke-filled room.

discussion of the political outlook for 1935, but that alone does not guarantee that any third party actually will develop.

Running for President is not quite the simple thing many people suppose. There is much more to it than just announcing a candidacy and setting up a headquarters.

Presidents are elected not directly by the voters, but by presidential electors. Those who aspire to become electors must have their names printed on the ballot in the state where they are running. And getting names printed on ballots is far from easy.

State election laws vary widely.
 Some states are very strict about candidates, imposing technicalities that require a great deal of work.

For any but an established party,
 of recognized standing and experienced personnel, getting a slate of electors on the ballots of the 48 states requires a regiment of lawyers and a plentiful supply of expense money.

Must Have Machinery
 But that is far from all. Before any effort can be made to put a slate of electors before the voters of any state, it first must be decided what names are to appear on the slate.

For an established party that is easy, the candidates for elector are chosen by state or district conventions, in which various subdivisions are represented under long-accepted party regulations.

A party starting from scratch must set up all of this machinery for itself. To do the job completely, it must make provision in each township or ward for the proper representation of that small unit in the convention which selects the delegates to the convention which selects the candidates for elector.

It is true that various third-party ventures have neglected to do any such thorough job, choosing their elector slate and campaign leaders by hit-and-miss methods. But it is equally true that no third party so sketchily organized ever got to first base.

All sorts of rivalries within the states have led to the most damaging kind of quarrels over procedure,

whenever a new party venture organized itself by these arbitrary methods.

Left-Wing Party?

THIS part of the difficulty is particularly interesting as respects 1934.

Most of the talk plays with the possibility that the extreme leftwingers—the Huey Long—Father Coughlin—Dr. Townsend—Upton Sinclair followers—will make up the bone and sinew of next year's third-party movement, if there is one.

How will they be organized? Who will lead in each state? And after a leader is chosen, how many can be depended on to follow him? Senator Long has been announcing his presidential candidacy regularly for some time now, but not one of the other outstanding left-wing figures has endorsed him.

Of course these obstacles cannot be regarded as decisive. Many politicians are fully convinced that in spite of the difficulties, 1935 will see some sort of a third-party foray. But they know that no such effort really can get under way until there has been a lot of spadework of a kind none is yet attempting.

Will Not Play Games
 By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

Some children never play games.
 Why they do not, and whether they could have been trained to do so if caught young enough, is a little like asking which came first, the hen or the egg. Does man make his environment or does it make him? A little of both, probably, with heredity and physical peculiarities as added factors.

There is no reason why all children should have to play games.
 The training in team and group
 work which they give is excellent,
 the muscular development and accuracy of eye and hand coordination which they insure cannot be denied, but all of these advantages can be gotten in other ways.

Often the boy who objects to baseball, tennis, football, will turn out a splendid organizer of clubs and groups of various kinds. If he follows his bent he will have to learn team work and adjustment to others.

Some children seem to be born with a distaste for the physical contacts which the rough and tumble of football and such sports require.
 Others fear the glare of publicity
 which they feel on the playing field.
 Near-sightedness prevents many from competition, and deafness is at times a handicap.

It is generally waste effort to try to force these children to conform to the standards set by modern conventions of education. Encourage them along their chosen lines and as far as possible encourage them to become proficient in them. It is hard to do well when one is not in direct competition with others. But the child who has the ambition to set himself a high standard of excellence and work up to it, may have the ambition one day to go far in some original field of endeavor.

Transpacific Plane Takes Off Tonight

Alameda, Calif., April 16 (AP).—A new era in transoceanic transportation will begin late today when the Pan American clipper takes off from its base here on the 2,400-mile flight to Honolulu, first leg of a commercial air service to the Far East.

The take-off time of the big seaplane was set for 4 p. m. (7 p. m. eastern standard time) unless weather conditions over the Pacific should suddenly change. They were reported favorable this morning.

No announcement was made of the expected arrival time at Honolulu, but the Clipper has a cruising speed of 150 to 160 miles an hour at which speed she would reach Hawaii Wednesday morning. The plane carries sufficient fuel to fly 800 miles past its destination.

Commanded by Capt. Edwin C. Musick, veteran of 22 years of flying, the four motors of the seaplane will lift some 41,000 pounds, including 3,000 gallons of fuel and engineering equipment when it takes off on the inaugural flight of the trans-Pacific service which later this year will trace an 8,500-mile aerial trade route between the United States and China.

The Clipper received its final tuning in a two-hour test flight over the San Francisco Bay region yesterday when it made radio contact with the Pan American Airways station at Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii.

Guiding the long flight will be a new radio compass.

Radio operators at both Honolulu and Alameda expect to be in constant touch with the Clipper almost from the time it takes off.

Besides Captain Musick, the Clipper's crew consists of R. O. D. Sullivan, second in command; Victor A. Wright, engineering officer; Fred J. Noonan, navigation officer; Harry R. Canada, junior flight officer, and W. Turner Jarboe, Jr., radio officer. They will fly a route which has cost the lives of 10 persons in different flights but which has been successfully conquered by several others.

Renews Campaign

London, April 16 (AP).—Mrs. Violet Vandenberg, militant opponent of capital punishment, renewed her campaign for abolition of the death penalty today by leading a demonstration at Wandsworth jail where a convicted murderer was hanged.

Fake Photo Plots Getting Attention

New York, April 16 (AP).—The third of a trio allegedly involved in a fake photograph extortion plot against Mrs. James H. R. Cromwell, the tobacco heiress, and Mrs. George Ugham Harris, daughter of a New York financier, was hunted today by New Jersey police.

Two men were trapped yesterday after detectives seized roles of servants of Mrs. Harris, who "billed" the $5,000 demand of blackmailers with a marked $1 bill.

The two were said by police to have implicated the third man, a photographer, whom they described as the brains of the plot against Mrs. Harris. Those arrested gave their names as Arthur Ullase, 24, and Dominick Piloti.

Paralleling the search for the third man was a hunt for a typewriter said by an evidence expert to have been used in demands on Mrs. Harris and in a futile attempt to extort $25,000 from Mrs. Cromwell, the former Doris Duke.

Fathers' Night

Fathers' Night will be observed by the Milton Parent-Teacher Association at its next meeting Thursday evening, April 25, which will be held in St. James Hall which has been donated for the occasion. There will be a special program with speakers, etc., games and refreshments. The P-T-A. members are very grateful to Father Mullins of St. James Church for the use of the hall.

Ruby P-T-A.

Lake Katrine, April 16.—The Ruby Parent-Teacher Association held its meeting at the schoolhouse on Thursday evening, April 11. A good attendance of 21 members, 20 children and 14 visitors was present. A brief business meeting was held during which it was announced that at the next meeting in May, on the second Thursday, election of officers would take place.

An invitation to the Lake Katrine P-T-A's Costume Community Frolic was extended to the members. Mr. Felton reported that he was going to place the safety signs on the road passing the school.

Mrs. Carl Wille introduced the evening's guest, James Loughran, county superintendent of highways. He first explained the mission of his trip through the west and gave a brief summary of it. The showing of the motion pictures taken by Mr. Loughran during his travels proved to be most interesting, educational and entertaining. Accompanied by Mr. Loughran's bright remarks and detailed descriptions they proved to be of immense interest both to the younger and older folks present. Such interesting and scenic places were shown as the Chicago World's Fair, Yellowstone National Park, the Boulder Dam site, Grand Canyon, many state capitals, buildings, the drouth stricken areas of the west, rodeos of the west, the orange groves of California, and many more such famous long-to-be-seen spots. All too soon the reels were finished, but they were much discussed while everyone enjoyed the delicious refreshments.

Saugerties Still Case Adjourned

New York, April 15.—(Special).—Judge Murray Hulbert in United States district court here today granted a two weeks adjournment in the case of the six men awaiting trial for the alleged operation of an unregistered still on the Martella farm in Saugerties.

The defendants, who were indicted last month, are Stanley Sabatino, John Pizzimenti, Frank Lopresti, Joseph Martella, Joseph Biviano and Onorato Rendinaro.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, April 16.—Mrs. Carl Eric Lindin returned recently from a visit in Boston.

Members of the Woodstock Ski Club skied on Slide Mountain on Sunday, where three feet of snow had fallen.

Mrs. Dyrrus Cook has just returned from New Jersey where she conducted an exhibit of etchings, lithographs and water colors by Woodstock artists. Works by Ivan Summers, Harry Gottlieb, R. W. Woiceski and herself were sold.

An unusual street lighting effect was seen in Woodstock Sunday when the suspended street light at Russell's corner on the Rock City road became unfastened and hung about a foot from the pavement for several hours, still lighted.

Hanno and Mildred Schrader returned to Irvington, N. J., on Sunday. They expect to make another trip next week-end.

Gigantic Globe of Stone

Graces 14-Story Temple
India rivals Egypt so far as the miracle is concerned. The building of the Pyramids provides enough wonder, but they were, despite their "piled" up stone by stone, says the Montreal Herald.

India, on the other hand, can go one better by mounting, in Tanjore, a temple which rises to a height of 216 feet, consisting of 14 stories, and upon which rests a gigantic globe of stone weighing some 20 tons. The globe is made of solid granite, and such speculation has been going on for years as to how it got there.

In the case of the Pyramids the theory is given that the mass was slowly raised as the building grew in height. In the case of the temple in Tanjore, however, it is believed that the stone, brought from quarries from miles away, was conveyed by means of an inclined plane and 12 years of strenuous labor were needed to accomplish the task.

Another Highway Bill in Assembly

Albany, April 16 (Special).—Declaring that Putnam county is now on the block to be ripped by Democratic legislation, Irving M. Ives, minority leader of the Assembly last night warned the majority members that this continued legislation would soon hit back at them again, and he quoted the parable, "as ye sow, so shall ye reap."

A bill will be acted upon by the Assembly today to abolish the position of highway superintendent in Putnam county, and set up in its stead a county engineer. This is nearly identical to the measure just passed affecting Ulster county. It is not expected, however, that time will permit the Senate to pass this measure because of adjournment which is expected within the next 24 hours.

The Republican spokesman briefly ran through the number of ripper bills that effect Toga, Monroe, New York, Nassau and Ulster counties, and sounded a note of warning to the opposing party when he declared that "chickens always come home to roost."

Spring Building Boom

Albany, N. Y., April 16 (AP).—A spring building boom provided a welcome tonic in the form of higher wages and added employment for construction workers, the State Department of Labor reports. Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews said last night reports from 1,300 contractors show a 7.4 per cent increase in employment during March. Payrolls increased 7.5 per cent and man hours 11.4 per cent.

Nudist Theatre Plays In New York Tonight

Albany, N. Y., April 16 (AP).—Shortly after the Nudist Theatre Guild Players had climbed back into their clothes at the end of a private New York premiere, the legislature turned thumbs down early today on nudism in the state.

The legislature's passage of an anti-nudism bill, championed by former Governor Alfred E. Smith as counsel for the Legion of Decency of New York, raised doubt as to how long the guild's light-clad, streamlined version of "The Girl From Chicago" would run.

The anti-nudism bill specifically would ring down the curtain on the play. It was approved by both Assembly and Senate, and went before Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for signature or veto.

The bill provides that persons of opposite sex appearing in the nude shall be charged with a misdemeanor, and that owners of property on which nudism is practiced shall be guilty of the same offense.

The showing of the nudists' production last night was for critics and guests. The play will have its first public performance in New York tonight.

The first two acts of this version of the old melodrama are laid in the library of a Washington home where the actors wear but a minimum of clothing, not however, an irreducible minimum, as demonstrated by the third act.

The scene in that act switches to a nudist camp where the cast goes on natural under dim blue lights.

Laval-Hitler Parley
Paris, April 16 (AP).—French political quarters said today that one of the possibilities resulting from the recent conference at Stressa will be a conversation between Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, and Reichsfuehrer Hitler in Berlin. Official quarters, on the other hand, stated that the present moment did not seem favorable for such talk, although reports persisted that Laval might stop off in Berlin on his way back from his forthcoming visit to Moscow, provided he received an invitation from Hitler.

Reservoir Country Twenty Years Ago

Shokan, April 16.—Among the Ashokan reservoir contracts being carried out 20 years ago was No. 152, for surfacing with vitrified brick blocks on a concrete foundation and with macadam, about five miles of highways on the main dam and the dikes and in the vicinity of the headworks, and for constructing guard walks on the sides of the highway that are on the dikes. The roads designated for this type of paving were in the towns of Olive Hurley and Marbletown. Items in the specifications for Contract 152 included: Excavations for 27,000 lineal feet of road; 6,000 cubic yards of broken stone; 9,000 cubic yards of concrete masonry; 17,000 barrels of Portland cement; 40,000 square yards of vitrified brick pavement; 2,000 pounds of cast iron and steel and 5,000 pounds of copper. A contract of bids opened April 13, 1915, the contract figures ranging from $189,150 to $392,000. Winston & Company, contractors for the main dam, being the lowest of 13 bidders, this company was awarded the contract. Time required for completion of the project was 17 months.

Paving Work.

Work on the paving of dam and dikes was begun May 4 and at the end of 1915, the contract was 63 per cent completed. The average force of men employed by Winston & Company during the year was 165 men and 13 animals, the latter being mostly mules. The camp on Winchell Hill built for Contract 3, or construction of the dam, was used by practically all the employees on the paving job. The plant and equipment for the roads on top of the main dam were turned over from Contract 3. This included the railroad, rolling stock and track, machine shop, rollers, wagons, mules, boilers, drills, etc., as well as a 5-ton tandem roller and a 4-yard Koehring concrete paving mixer. Thus it was that the contractors, having practically all the necessary equipment on the scene, were in a position to begin operations soon after receiving the contract. Men and mules were put to work at grading excavations, for which the Winston concern had bid 10 cents a lineal foot, as against a maximum bid by competitors of $1 per foot and an average bid of $4.2 per foot. A standard-gauge railroad track was built from the south wing of the dam to the Bishop quarry near Tongore, N. E. Church. A crushing plant was set up consisting of a No. 6 gyratory crusher from which a bucket conveyor raised the stone to rotary screens placed over elevated storage bins. The tailings were conveyed to stone rolls, the product from which was conveyed to the bucket conveyor. Two tracks, one on either side of the plant, allowed the crushed stone to be chuted from the bins into the railroad cars and the stone to be loaded for the guard walls of the dam and dikes. Three guy derricks were erected for serving the crusher muck to the crusher and loading the stone trains. This quarry, incidentally, has since been used as a source of supply for the stone used by the reservoir maintenance force in repaving of boulevard pavements, the manufacture of concrete highway guard posts and other purposes. At the West Hurley end of the East basin a crusher was set up at the old quarry near the southerly end of the dike and the stone was hauled by wagons to the top of the dike. Water was pumped to an elevated tank from a pond near the quarry and piped along the Hurley dike for use as needed.

Grading Operation

Grading operations were begun at the easterly end of the middle dike. Paving brick and crushed stone were stored along the up-stream wall and sufficient sand and screenings for the concrete foundation were stored on the down-stream side. At the walls, built of stone blocks from the Tongore quarry, were finished the foundations for shoulder sidewalks were prepared and crushed stone placed. In preparation for the paving the railroad tracks were removed for about 100 feet ahead of the work and the subgrade prepared. For the foundation a mixture of 1:2½:5½ was used, the concrete being divided into sections 24 feet long and separated by strips of building paper for expansion purposes. Bias steel forms were employed for the curb and edgings and a mixture of 1:1½:2½ was used. In warm weather building paper was used for the joints on the curb and edging but in cold weather the steel bulkhead was left in until the concrete had set. This left an open joint 5-16 inch wide, the edges of which were caulked with oakum. An average day's work on this job was ten sections (240 feet).

The concrete foundation having been laid, a 1½-inch sand cushion was spread and then rolled with a 400-pound roller; then a roller screed with a slight camber was used for shaping the cushion which was again run over with the roller. It was found that a slightly moist sand gave the best results in preparing the cushion. In order to keep the expansion joints in the foundation from being filled, a dry mortar (1:4) cushion was used instead of clear sand. This mortar cushion was laid the foot on each side of the joint. The sand cushion being in place, vitrified bricks, 3½x3½x8½, with lugs on one side, were laid for the surface pavement and rolled with a 5-ton tandem roller. An average day's work for one paver and eight helpers was 400 square yards.

Longitudinal expansion was provided for by inserting premolded bituminous strips, ½ inch by 2 inches, between the adjoining courses at intervals of 24 feet. Over expansion joints in the foundation, the bottom of the strip was placed even with the bottom of the brick, leaving the upper 1½ inches of the joint open for subsequent grouting. For the transverse expansion, premolded bituminous strips, ½ inch by 3¼ inches were placed between the bricks and the concrete edging. At those points where the pavement cross-section was a straight slope the strip was placed only on the up-hill side and where it curved it was placed on both sides. Grout in the proportion of 1:1 was applied in either two or three operations, the number of these depending more on the atmospheric pressure than on the shape of the cross section. In cool weather the grout settled more before it set. The grout was applied with scoop shovels, beginning generally at the low side of the pavement. The paving was covered with a thin layer of sand after the grout filling had set sufficiently. In a test section 413.5 cubic inches of grout were used per square yard of surface. The voids to be filled in this area equalled 353.6 cubic inches, showing a shrinkage in the grout of 59.8 cubic inches.

Close of 1915

The close of 1915 saw the brick pavement completed on the middle dike from Leonard hill west to near the top of Road 23, leading down to the aerator park, while at the West Hurley dike the concrete foundation was ready for brickwork. Rubble paving in mortar was laid in the gutters on both sides of Road 23. The guard wall, with the exception of the coping, was practically completed. The circle road on top of Leonard hill, overlooking the East basin, was paved with water-bound macadam and the shoulders were graded but not rolled. The roads in the vicinity of the aerator also were being paved with water-bound macadam. As it was urgent that the roadway along the dividing weir should be open for public travel before the flooding of the East basin, grouting was continued until November 20 when the road was completed from the junction of the West and Middle dikes with the dividing weir dike to the connection with No. 22, or the Shokan road, at the north end of the bridge. Grouting was not permitted except when the atmospheric pressure was above 40 degrees Fahrenheit. The cushion for the Ashokan, or dividing weir bridge was a dry mortar mixed 1:4. Expansion joints were protected by copper strips set in hot asphalt. In concreting the four plazas at the upper gate chamber, as 11-foot by 11-foot blocks, the use of intermediate tie-plates in the curbing forms was discontinued in favor of U-shaped rods spanning the concrete surfaces. On Road 23, owing to the steepness of the grade, stop walls were built, approximately 200 feet apart. These were 42 inches wide at the bottom, extending 14 inches below the regular road foundation. Two rows of anchor rods, staggered, reinforced the concrete. Other concreting was begun at the Stone Church and Spillway bridges, the West dike, Road 12 and the Olive Bridge dam. Bricks three inches thick were laid across the dam, on a ½-inch dry mortar bed, while on Road 23 special "hillside" bricks were used, with the long side laid parallel to the center line of the road, keeping the transverse grooves in a continuous line across the paving. Each day's work was finished at one of the stop-walls, in order to prevent the seeping out of the sand cushion in case of rain.

The paving of the Olive Bridge, or main dam of the reservoir, presented added problems in engineering skill. Screeding the cushion on the masonry position, for instance, required a special apparatus. The section of road five feet either side of the center line remains constant, but from these points out to the curb it has a constantly changing section, with a 2-inch constant midway between ditches. Two screeds were used to give this result. Tapered wooden strips were laid along the edge of the gutter, forming a level line from summit to drain; along these the first screed was moved, giving the constant portion of the cross-section. The strips were then removed and the second screed, resting on the concrete direct, formed the varying section. Thus did the highway engineers obtain practical results, despite the fact that this method was not theoretically correct. Copper strips set in hot asphalt covered the expansion joints of the dam paving.

After about half a mile of dike had been laid with brick and grouted a modified method of paving was put into effect. Modifications in the pavement were made to provide for longitudinal expansion and contraction joints on both sides of the road, the one along the gutter edging being entirely of poured asphaltic filler one inch wide, and on the other side the joint being ½ inch wide, made up of ½-inch by 3¼-inch premolded bituminous strips. The transverse expansion and contraction joints at intervals of about 24 feet were made by placing ½-inch by 2-inch strips in four consecutive joints and later filling the upper 1½ inches with poured asphaltic filler. It was found that these modifications provided ample means for expansion and contraction and, also, water-proof joints along the edging. It was found necessary to cut out the grout from the upper 1½ inches of transverse joints in the earlier-laid pavements, as the bricks rose at each of these joints as the weather became warmer. A poured asphaltic filler improved conditions by relieving longitudinal expansion.

Open Feb. 1916

The Ashokan bridge and dividing weir dike were opened for traffic February 1, 1916, the Olive Bridge dam on September 14, and the complete system on October 31. At the West Hurley dike, laying brick was begun on May 20 and completed June 1, and the road was opened for travel on July 1. One year's maintenance of the roads was required under contract 152. Incidentally, it may be recalled that New York city at one time seriously considered paving the entire reservoir boulevard system with vitrified brick, the method finally being voted down in favor of a macadamized pavement as being too costly. Had brick been used on the north boulevard there probably would have been no movement started to substitute a non-skid surface, as is being currently done, though the motoring hazard due to sharp curves still would remain more or less of a highway problem. Concrete, of course, offers even better resistance in wet weather and doubtless will be employed when, and if, a change is made.

MISSING MOTHER MAY HAVE ENTERED AUTO

Farmington, Conn., April 15 (AP).—The posse searching the woods and fields for Mrs. Ann Booth Gordon, 25-year-old socially prominent resident, dwindled to a handful of rivermen today as authorities weighed the possibility that the young mother may have been picked up in an automobile, and her kin clung to a thread of hope for her safety.

Chief of Police Nathan W. Fuller, in charge of the search, which today entered its sixth day, ordered the hunt narrowed to the Farmington river, where grappling hooks are still in use and a small band of men are beating along the banks.

A trailing dog, used with much success in similar cases in New Jersey, entered the case late yesterday and picked up Mrs. Gordon's scent from a slipper she wore the Wednesday of her disappearance, leading officials to the driveway of the Alexander Harper estate.

The trail ended at the estate drive, where the dog, owned by William A. Walsh, of Jersey City, N. J., tossed its head in the air and sniffed, indicating the scent had given out.

Walsh said when asked what this meant, "Why, it looks as if she entered an automobile at this point."

Andrew Gordon, husband of the missing woman, was at the point of exhaustion today, but still was unprepared to give up hoping that his wife would turn up alive.

Local Amateurs Contact Plane

On Sunday afternoon, while in conversation on ultra high frequency radio, W2DPN and W2GFD were interrupted by calls from W2HWD operated by Dr. Lowell A. Brown from a plane flying up the river from Walden. He was at once contacted by the local amateurs who directed him up the river to Kingston. Dr. Brown eluded the city, while the local radio men brought to his attention the landmarks of the vicinity. After a short chat with the locals from his 2,400 foot altitude, he flew back down the river and was heard to contact stations at Newburgh and Cornwall.

Further high frequency tests will be discussed at the regular meeting of the Colonial City Radio Club this Wednesday evening.

The official club broadcasts will terminate for the summer with a transmission by W2HWD this evening at 9 o'clock.

District Attorney Objected to Method Of Shackling 2 Men

Two Walkkill Medium Security Prisoners Brought Into Court to Answer Separate Charges Handcuffed Together—Had Escaped Prison.

A rather unusual sight was presented in county court Monday when a guard from Walkkill Medium Security Prison presented two defendants before the court handcuffed together. Judge Tracy inquired why two men in prison uniform were being brought before the bar when District Attorney Cleon B. Murray had called for the arraignment of one man. The sergeant of the guard explained that he desired permission to have the two men cuffed together in order to prevent any demonstration in the court. Judge Tracy permitted the two men to remain handcuffed together during the arraignment of each other.

District Attorney Murray stated that in the future he would prefer that no prisoners be arraigned in the court shackled together as it did not present a very good impression to the jurors present. He asked that if possible arrangements be made to bring in the men separately.

The two men were Charles Guigino and Renold Rock, two men who had been transferred to Walkkill prison from Sing Sing and who had taken the opportunity of escaping the prison. Both were arraigned on a charge of unlawfully escaping prison. At first both entered pleas of not guilty but later Rock changed his mind and returned to the court room, alone with his guard, and entered a plea of guilty and the court sentenced Rock to Clinton State Prison at Dannemora for a term of two years but remanded him to the custody of the warden at Sing Sing pending transfer.

Rock was sentenced to Sing Sing for the burglary of a New York store of 65 suits of clothes. He was later transferred to the Walkkill Medium Security Prison. On April 15, 1933, he escaped from the prison and being a native of Sagua, Cuba, he was about to be deported to Cuba. Where he was when the time he escaped and when he was sent to Ellis Island for deporting was not stated. While awaiting a steamer at the island he was going under an alias. The authorities did not recognize him as the man wanted for escape from Walkkill. However, another person there recognized him and during a conversation between these men a guard overheard Rock state that he was an escaped convict from Walkkill. He was arrested and returned to prison to face the prison breaking charge in Ulster county.

Charles Guigino was also transferred from Sing Sing to Walkkill and there was employed in the engine room at the prison. One day he walked out of the engine room and went up the road where he took a bus for New York. Not having the necessary change for transportation he secreted himself on the spare tire of the bus and rode "blind-baggage" to New York. His departure from Walkkill was on December 29, 1934, and he was later picked up by the New York city police. He entered a plea of not guilty and asked that the court assign counsel. This will be done later.

Prew Released From Jail

Nelson Prew, who was sentenced to a year in jail on his plea of guilty to a year ago to having taken part in an arson case in Shandaken, was released from jail when the court reduced his sentence one month. Prew has been a trusty and has a very good record. At the time of the case coming before the grand jury Prew signed a statement and assisted the authorities in a great measure. Now he has a job if he returns home. In view of these facts, District Attorney Murray recommended a reduction in sentence to permit defendant to take the job. He comes from Gloversville.

Murder Trial Put Over

Due to the fact that Assemblyman J. Edward Conway is still at Albany with the legislature, the case of Philip Deslano, charged with murder, first degree, for the shooting of his brother-in-law at Marlborough, was put over the term. Mr. Conway and George Rusk were assigned as defense counsel. Mr. Rusk asked that the case go over until Mr. Conway could have an opportunity to investigate and assist in the defense. Granted.

Case No. 2, The People vs. Herbert MacCaulley, will probably be disposed of without a trial on Thursday.

The third case on the calendar, The People vs. Frank Brayton, John Knor and Isidor Paradis, will probably go over the term. There is a motion pending before supreme court for an examination of the grand jury minutes in the Knor case, which has not been determined. John M. Cashin appeared for Brayton and asked for 10 days' time as he had not represented Brayton at the time he was arraigned. Bail was fixed at $2,500. The cases grow out of the burning of buildings on the Knor place on the Saengerles road last fall.

The fourth case on the criminal calendar, Walter Fuller and Jesse Burke, went over on application of Frank Brooks, counsel for defendants.

To Be Sentenced Thursday

Robert Ennist of Lake Katrine, one of the lads involved in several robberies in this vicinity, entered a plea of guilty to unlawful entry. He will be sentenced Thursday of this week. Ennist, together with Arthur Melchior, Albert Tyler and John Duffner, Jr., of Kingston were charged with several crimes. The cases of Melchior, Tyler and Duffner were disposed of in supreme court. They entered pleas of guilty to a hold-up at the Weeks grocery store on Liberty street. Ennist was not involved in this crime but had been a companion with the trio on other minor jobs.

On application of Roger H. Loughran the case of Joseph Dawson went over until June. Mr. Loughran explained that a witness was absent and could not be reached.

Sentence Suspended

Daniel Farrell, alias David Moroy, was sentenced to a term of from two to four years at Clinton State Prison at Dannemora but the execution of sentence was suspended during good behavior. Moroy comes from Tivoli and is the lad who snatched a purse from a young woman recently on Clinton avenue. Moroy entered a plea of guilty.

An extra panel of jurors was in attendance and after excuses had been presented and those desiring to be excused had been excused the jurors were excused until Wednesday at 10 o'clock.

Court adjourned until that time.

Family Recreation

Rochester, N. Y., April 16 (P).—The return of the old time taffy pull, corn popping on the kitchen stove, family picnics and backyard baseball will re-establish parents in their rightful positions as play leaders, in the opinion of delegates here to the New York state conference of recreation executives. These were cited by the recreation experts as part of a plan to overcome modern recreational methods, characterized as destructive of family get-togethers. Training of parents through cooperation of the P-T-A. will be a part of the scheme, Miss M. Esther Fitzgerald of Utica told the conference. E. Dana Caulkins of White Plains, declaring adult recreation will become increasingly important, warned it must be "recreation with a purpose."

Special British Air Guard Is Announced

London, April 16 (P).—The British government announced today it is setting up a special department to deal with safeguarding the British Isles' 45,000,000 people against air attacks.

Sir John Gilmour, the home secretary, told the House of Commons that the home office was setting up a special department with quarters in Westminster and was starting to work on the subject of air defense with a full staff May 1.

The primary duty of the department, the home secretary said, would be to communicate to local authorities throughout England and Wales the details of measures which it would be necessary for them to take for the purpose of organizing local services for safeguarding the civilian population against the effects of air attacks.

The establishment of such precautionary measures was fore-shadowed last July in the House of Commons by Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, during a debate on defense.

The first task of the new department would be to circulate all local authorities outlining the public air defense policy and indicating the nature and the extent of cooperation required from them.

Detailed instructions to the public will follow later at a date which Sir John did not reveal.

In connection with the increasing clamor in Great Britain for action providing air raid protection, an unconfirmed rumor recently circulated that the government had approached a prominent chain store organization with a query as to whether gas masks could be produced and offered for public sale for two shillings, six pence—about 60 cents—each.

MODENA

Modena, April 16.—At the Home Bureau business meeting held at the home of Mrs. Myron Shultis, Thursday afternoon, the annual election of officers was made, and in reporting the appointments, the mention of the chairman of the flower committee, Mrs. Jonah Rhodes, was omitted. ## 15 Negro Youths May Enroll for CCC Camp

At the local emergency relief bureau today it was stated that Kingston had been allotted a quota of 15 negro youths for the April CCC camps, and those who desire to enroll for camp should apply immediately at the ERB headquarters on Central Broadway, adjoining the Y. M. C. A.

There are still some vacancies to be filled for white youths in the CCC camp quota, and the local ERB is anxious to have its quota filled out as quickly as possible. Youths desiring to enroll for camp should do so at once.

Open Defiance
Boston, April 16 (AP).—Open defiance of the administration's cotton processing tax was voiced yesterday by James Sinclair, president of the Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' Association, who said: "I am willing to go to jail for refusal to pay this tax myself." Sinclair, who is also treasurer of the Charlton mills

In Fall River, proposed that northern and southern manufacturers refuse to pay the tax "unless President Roosevelt shows an inclination to aid the textile industry." "I am in a 'Boston Tea Party' mood," Sinclair declared. "I am willing to go to jail for refusal to pay this tax myself," he asserted. "I can enjoy a rest in jail as well as anybody else."

Tips on CONTRACT

The "Four Aces" System

By TOM O'NEIL

The Four Aces system of contract bridge, "the system that has beaten every other one in existence," has made its formal appearance. It is by "the bridge champions of the world," David Burnstine, Michael Gottlieb, Oswald Jacoby and Howard Schenken, in collaboration with Waldemar von Zedtwitz.

As the fundamental basis of the system, described as responsible, in large measure, for its success against other systems, is a valuation table. The ace is three points, the king two, the queen one and the jack one-half. An average hand is 6½ and the total of the pack is 26.

Bid Requirements

For an opening bid of one of a suit seven to nine points are required depending on distribution. The requirements for an opening bid of one no trump are 1½ to 13 with no doubleton worse than ace-low or king-low. The determining factor with a borderline hand is the principle of anticipation, whether the opening bidder can rebid over partner's response in any other suit. When a hand is too strong in high card values to pass and has no properly bidable suit and is not strong enough to bid one no trump a bid of one, on a three-card minor headed by ace or king is made.

For an opening bid of two in a suit probable playing strength of within one trick of game is required. The responding hand refrains from the bid of one no trump if any other is available. The response of one over one is neutral, although forcing, and in extreme cases, may be made with a hand that is too weak for a one no trump response.

Rebidding Rules

A raise of an opening bid of one in a suit to three shows substantial high card holding in addition to trump support. The jump to four shows the raise is based principally on distribution.

For rebids by the opening bidder the "Aces" have principles of the level shift and the skip level shift. The level shift occurs when the bid of a second suit invited a return at the first suit at the lowest level at which the opening bidder could have rebid it. The skip level shift is when a bid of a second suit invited a return to the opening bidder's first suit at a higher level than that at which the opening bidder could have made a simple rebid.

Opening bids of three or four of a suit are preemptive. So is the jump overall.

Doubles Direct Leads

The "Aces" have conventional lead-directing doubles.

A double of three no trump by the player not on lead, when neither of the defenders has bid, is a request for a lead of the first suit bid by declarer's partner. When the doubler has bid he wants his suit led.

The double of a slam bid by the player not on lead is always a request for a specific lead. If declarer's partner has bid any suits other than the final trump the double demands a lead of the first of such suits. If declarer's partner has bid no side suits and declarer has the double asks a lead of the declarer's first side suit. If neither has bid side suits one of the unbid suits should be led.

For slam bidding after a double raise of the opening bidder's suit the "Aces" have devised the "rule of the Ace and the King." After a double raise by partner the opening bidder should invite slam if with a balanced hand he can remove an ace and still have a sound bid or response. If his hand has a singleton or void and he can remove a king and still have a sound bid or response slam also should be invited.

Psychics

For psychic bids the "Aces" have some "don'ts" to wit: Don't open a psychic with a suit of less than four cards or in second position at all. Don't open with lead directing bids in first or second position. A fake lead-directing bid is called as the most vulnerable psychic in an effort to stop a lagging slam.

We're getting tired of red, pink, black and so on as political colors. What we need is a Green Party, guarding hope and sanity.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Edgar Allan Poe's poem, "The Raven," will be a mixture of modern and medieval terrors when it reaches the screen, one gathers from the sets.

With Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi, the scaremen twins, as principals, the picture is largely set in the underground secret halls of a modern surgeon with a torture complex, and here in these gray stone caverns are medieval instruments devised to make human beings most uncomfortable. But they are operated—for that modern touch—by an electric switchboard.

The surgeon, incidentally, is a rabid Poe fan, which entitles him to use the pit-and-the-pendulum device, the walls that close in on their victim, and other pleasant conceits.

Close-Ups Out

Edmund Goulding, directing "The Flame Within," his own story and production, is using a style that eliminates close-ups and keeps his actors giving one of those "sustained performances" the stage people say they miss in the movies. Ordinarily a scene can be broken down into bits, each photographed separately. Goulding keeps the camera going, and some of the "takes" have run as long as 400 feet, or four minutes of screen time.

The word "death" or the suggestion of it in a title is supposed to be death at the box-office, although "Death Takes a Holiday" lent itself successfully to exploitation. Anyway, the reason they changed the title of Shirley Temple's new one from "Heaven's Gate" to "Our Little Girl" was exhibitor fear that fans would think Shirley dies in the picture, which she doesn't.

Binnie Gets Russell Role

Binnie Barnes, the English actress, is to play the American beauty, Lillian Russell, in "Diamond Jim." The Russell eyes were deep blue, according to studio research, while Binnie's are light brown, but lighting will take care of that little detail.

Lyle Talbot's picture career, by coincidence, seems always to return to the oriental atmosphere. Since he made "Fox Over Frisco," which had part of its background in China, he has appeared in "Oil For the Lamps of China" and now is in "Chinatown Squad."

American stars are rated on the whole in Europe about in the order of their favor here, with the exception of Mae West, a recently returned producer reports. Joan Crawford, he says, is Europe's idea of a typical American girl, along with Margaret Sullivan, who is "catching on" rapidly there, and Garbo overshadows Dietrich—and everybody else—in popularity. But some of Hollywood's stars, notably those who have appeared consistently in talky picture plays, are totally unknown over there. As for Mae, they just don't understand her.

REVIEWED

Today

Broadway: "Little Colonel." Shirley Temple proves to be a master at the art of tap dancing during the course of this delightful picture, as it tells the story of a child's ability to reconcile her mother and grandfather who have been estranged for years. In fact, Little Miss Temple shines in every department and the entire show is one of the most enjoyable offerings to come out of the Hollywood film shops in months. There is a good measure of tart humor in this talkie, and the acting is far above the average because of the excellence of the players. The scenes are laid in the south of 1870 and the warmth and hospitality of the old south are glowingly pictured. Bill Robinson, the famous tap dancing artist, almost snatches the picture with an unusually agreeable performance, and Little Miss Temple's initiation of his dancing is one of the high spots of the picture. Lionel Barrymore is excellent as always in the role of the grumpy grandfather and John Lodge and Evelyn Venable are also well cast. The production was directed by David Butler.

Orpheum: "Music in the Air" and "Cowboy Holiday." Gloria Swanson returns to the screen in a musical production, and her role of a flighty opera star who dashes madly through the scenes followed by her artistic husband to be, lends many comical moments to this talkie. The story centers around this singing star and her troubles over contracts, etc., until her producers find a substitute to take her place. Excellent singing and dialogue are highlights of this show. John Boles and Douglas Montgomery are in the cast. "Cowboy Holiday" is the added feature, with Big Boy Williams.

Kingston: "The Scarlet Pimpernel." The millions of people who consider Leslie Howard the finest of motion picture leading men will not be disappointed in this elaborate British production, a costume picture that concerns itself with the French Revolution. For sheer dramatic power, coupled with a melodramatic lensiveness carefully planned out, "The Scarlet Pimpernel" possesses its full share of entertainment virtue, and becomes one of the important pictures of the year. France, at the time the story opens, is in the hands of the revolutionists, and the heads of the aristocrats are being guillotined at the rate of 40 or 50 a day. Innocent people including women and children are being beheaded during this bloody reign of horror, and suddenly a strange and mysterious Englishman, with a band of secret followers, steals into France and helps many of the innocent escape the bloody death awaiting them. He is called "The Scarlet Pimpernel" and the leaders of the French Revolution bend every effort to catch him, but he eludes them every trap. In the end he is captured, unknowingly betrayed by his wife, and following one of the most gripping scenes ever recorded before a camera, he escapes to England. Filmed on a grand scale, and directed by the capable Alexander Korda, the picture has everything a picture requires to make it a distinctive hit. A group of English players include Merle Oberon.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same. Orpheum: "Best Man Wins" and "Mystery Woman." Jack Holt is the star of the opening drama, a story of deep sea divers and the perils awaiting them. It also concerns a group of crooks seeking buried treasure, and one of the divers goes to his death because of it. Edmund Lowe and Florence Rice are in the supporting roles as is Della Luskoff. The underwater shots are especially noteworthy in this film. "Mystery Woman" concerns two gentlemen spies, both seeking the same valuable papers and both are in love with the same woman. Excitement runs high during the course of the play, and both spies meet a rather gruesome death at the finish. Mona Barrie, John Halliday, and Gilbert Roland are in the cast.

Kingston: "One Hour Late" and "A Wicked Woman." The opening number is a comedy romance wherein numerous men and women get all tangled up in misunderstandings of varied nature. Joe Morrison, new Paramount singing sensation, steals the show with an enjoyable performance, and the rest of the cast includes such favorites as Helen Twelvetrees, Conrad Nagel and Arline Judge. "A Wicked Woman" brings forth a new star in the person of Mady Christians. It's sheer drama, this story of a woman who kills her husband in order to save her family. At times the picture reaches rare heights of dramatic power, and an able supporting group of players include Charles Bickford, Jean Parker and Betty Furness.

SHOKAN

Shokan, April 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carter of the mountain road last Wednesday attended the funeral at Bloomville of George Johnson, Mr. Carter's brother-in-law, who died at Cornwall, N. J. Mr. Johnson is a former resident of Mt. Tremper.

The willing workers of the Ashokan M. E. Church have set the date of their annual fair for Wednesday, August 7, both afternoon and evening. A supper will be served in the church hall on this occasion.

Charles W. Walton and chauffeur, George Wells, of Kingston, were recent callers at Mr. Walton's mountain lodge near Glenford.

The social held Friday evening in the Reformed Church hall Friday evening was fairly well attended considering the disagreeable weather. Games of bridge, pinocle, euchre and dominoes were played by those attending the party. For refreshments each guest stirred individual portions of new maple syrup into warm sugar for eating with hot biscuits.

Mrs. Olivia J. Phillips, who died Friday at the home in Ashokan of her son, Clarence, was one of the older residents of northeastern Olive. Mrs. Phillips, widow of Frank Phillips, for many years resided on the place in the Tonche Mountain neighborhood now occupied by her son, Jerry Phillips.

George Vandemark and Herbert Gleason between them caught 14 fine trout in the Ashokan Reservoir last week. One of Mr. Gleason's catch was the 24-inch beauty told about in The Freeman columns recently. Young Vandemark was formerly a guest at the Craver summer camp on the Ridge road.

"Dutch" Krom, an enrollee at Camp No. 2, Bolceville, from July, 1933, through September, 1934, is now a foreman at the local camp. Mr. Krom was recommended for this responsible position because of his good work in the capacity of assistant leader with Company 215.

Burr Elmendorf is having additional rooms built onto the Elmendorf homestead in the village center. Bedroom space and a bathroom are called for in the specifications. Claude Rose is doing the carpenter work and Frank Myers will install the plumbing on this job.

C. H. Stokes, widely known Roundout Valley miller, was numbered among the Kerhonkson residents in the hub of the reservoir section last week.

Thursday morning, April 15, 1880, the death took place of Mrs. Albert North. Funeral services were conducted in the Shokan M. E. Church on the 17th by the Rev. Richard L. Shurtler, pastor of the church. Mr. and Mrs. North owned a 60-acre farm near Shokan village.

State foresters at the CCC camp are cleaning up the attractive rock garden in front of their quarters. The garden with its cobblestone border, pool and fountain, numerous shrubs and wealth of flowering plants, is one of the most picturesque spots along Route 28 during the summer months.

A business meeting of the willing workers of the Ashokan M. E. Church was held Thursday, April 4, at the residence of Mrs. Martin Gulnack. There were 12 members of the workers and two visitors present at the meeting. Following the conclusion of routine business refreshments of cookies and tea were served to those in attendance.

Burtis Wheat is adding a bath room to his residence at the corner of the state and mountain roads. Benjamin of Israel Werhlow, well known Kingston cattle buyers, were business callers here Friday.

William McKittick, who died last week at his home in Kingston, had a number of friends in this section. The McKittick family resided in the old village many years ago.

Callers in the village center Sunday included James Hollister, of Gates, Center, Kas., who in the course of a trip back east came here to view what remains of his birthplace and to renew old acquaintanceships. Mr. Hollister, after an absence of 25 years, found only the crumbling foundation and chimneys of his old homestead standing. He is a son of Lewis Hollister, farmer, and one of the early emigrating teachers in Olive and adjacent towns. He is a brother of the late Marshall Hollister, who last owned the old farm, now a part of the Breuchaud estate near Brodhead.

A man of pleasing personality, 55 years young, Mr. Hollister joyfully remarked that Uncle Sam had financed his pleasant trip back home by paying him "not to plant corn." The Kansan incidentally favors Will Rogers for our next president.

Visiting sportsmen who in past years have failed to find bait for sale in the north reservoir sector, may now secure a supply of lures for the big Ashokan trout at the Van Aken place at Kennerly Lake.

The shifting of TERA road work to this end of the town comes as a welcome change to local workers on these projects, who during the past winter have had to get up early in the morning and travel many miles to the scene of their labors. The Shokan-Holceville hill road, now to be widened and paved, is one of the oldest stretches of highway in Olive and one that was much more traveled before the construction of the north boulevard.

The basketball season at Camp No. 2 was officially brought to a close with the presentation of Barracks No. 4 of the Barracks League pennant. This unit had a most successful season, winning all of its games by wide margins. The presentation was made possible through the cooperation of Lieut. Nathan Armour and Valmore Carpenter. Several of the variety baseball stars of last year are again in the limelight. Slaskak, Carpenter, Collins, Cullen and Zimmerman having been offered positions on a team being organized by the business men of Phenicia.

April 13, 1877, a Sunday School was organized in the eastern part of Olive with Philip H. Lasher as its superintendent. Mr. Lasher was a farmer owning 120 acres in Olive and 114 acres in Hurley.

Trout fishing conditions have improved materially as a result of the recent rains. The brooks which had been very low, now are reported to be just about right for good fishing.

Aarten Van Wakenen and Richard Craver of Kingston called on friends here Sunday. Mr. Van Wakenen, probably Ulster county's leading philatelist specializing in first day covers and uncancelled blocks of stamps, has secured a complete set of the new "Farley Folies," or ungummed imperforates about which there has been so much ado in the stamp collecting world of late.

Lenten Musicales Here Sunday, April 14

The fourth and last Lenten musicale was held at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Sunday, April 14. A capacity audience was reluctant to leave after the last number of the program which was very gratifying to the young musicians on the program. This was a children's program ranging from eight years of age. The piano solo, violin solo, cello solo, and cornet solo were exceedingly well done. Soprano solos were sung with much feeling and expression and the mixed chorus which was conducted by Mrs. Robert Hawkins was greatly enjoyed. Each child knew the music perfectly from memory. The instrumental trio which consisted of violin, piano and cello was greatly enjoyed and was surely an appropriate ending to such a beautiful hour of music. Following was the program:

Piano solo—The Chase . . . Rineberger
Etude Artistic . . . . . Goddard
Donald Hicks
Solo—How Beautiful Upon the Mountains . . . . . Harker
Helen Schoonmaker
Violin solo—Air with Variations . . . D'Ania
Violet Dunbar
Children's chorus—They Brought Little Children Unto Jesus . . . . . Hicks
Assisted by Miss Bruce, Mr. Canfield and Mr. Fatum Cornet solo—The Rosary . . . . . Nevin
Robert L. Craft

Robert Hawkins, Jr.
Cello solo—Romance . . . . . Ascher
Adrian C. Cuddeby
Piano solo—Prelude . . . . . Rachmaninoff

MODES OF THE MOMENT

Black lace offers a fascinating "shadow silhouette." Liana Merwin

Even in this new season of colorful modes and contrast effects, black still retains its following in newly designed fashions for summery evening wear.

Black cord lace is combined with black net to fashion the beautiful gown sketched above. This new and different model offers pleasing variation to a wardrobe that may already include chiffon or tulle gowns—two other favored fabrics of the new season.

A very smart shadow silhouette is achieved in this dress by using a close fitting black crepe slip beneath the very full skirted overdress of lace and net. The cape styled top with high neckline is sleeveless and a squared neckline of the underdress shows through the cord lace. Deep folds of black net trim the cape, which is much longer at back.

Net also fashions the full and graceful floor length flounce at the lower skirt while a self-belt and large bunch of colorful poppies at the front waistline effectively complete the trimming of this most distinctive model.

Such cool and airy styles as this one will be much in vogue throughout the spring and summer season.

BARBARA BELL FASHION PATTERNS

Pattern No. 1638-B

Summer Porch Dress With Youthful Lines

Every housewife's wardrobe must include ever so many types of frocks if it is to be interesting. Most women like to have one dress at least that hints at the lighter side of the mode in the matter of color and fabric. This model shows a printed lawn in delicate colors. The trimming of crisp fabric sustains an appearance of freshness that is always attractive in house frocks.

This dress is cut with few seam-lines. It hangs straight from the shoulders and has darts to give ease over the busts and to nip the waistline in to a proper fit. Dropped shoulders act as sleeves and a prettily cut pocket completes the trimming details.

Fascinating materials suggest themselves for this design. Printed lawns, modern calicos, seersucker, percale, gingham, poplin, dimity, cotton broadcloth and washable novelty prints are among the most suitable ones.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1638-B is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20; 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material; 3/4 yard of 36 inch contrast.

Tomorrow: Chic one-piece frock of printed silk.

TRAIL OF BLOOD CAUSES EXCITEMENT IN HIGHLAND

Highland, April 14. Some excitement was caused last week by a trail of blood and the stories of a man found at Pratt's Mills with an injured head, and that led to the conclusion of a hold-up. Running down the sales the facts proved to be that an Italian, Massimo Santoro, whose home was in Hinchey, got off the 10:50 p.m. train and walking up from the river fell at the corner of White and Main streets and cut his head. The cut was not deep but a small blood vessel was cut and Ernest Foster, driving to the river, saw the man covered with blood. On his return Mr. Foster traced the tracks by the blood and found the man had walked up Grand street to Pratt's Mills where he fell through weakness. Sergeant Lockhart was summoned and Dr. C. F. Meekins called, who took the man to the Kingston Hospital.

Ulster Holstein Club Annual Banquet Held Monday at New Paltz

Approximately 100 Members and Guests Hear Former Commissioner of Agriculture and Markets and State President of Holstein Breeders' Association.

C. H. Baldwin, former commissioner of the State Department of Agriculture and Markets, was a speaker at the annual banquet of the Ulster County Holstein Club held Monday evening at Grange Hall, New Paltz, where the ladies of the Grange served a most excellent dinner prior to the business session of the club.

Edward J. Chaffee, of the Eastern New York Club of Dutchess county and state president of the Holstein Breeders' Association, was also a guest speaker. William J. Clark, assistant Farm Bureau manager, represented the Ulster County Farm Bureau in the absence of Mr. Kurdt.

Mr. Kurdt was unable to attend the dinner. Mr. Deyo presented Fred DuBois as toastmaster and in turn Mr. DuBois welcomed the members of the 4-H Clubs, who were guests of the club. Mr. DuBois said the club was always happy to welcome the junior farmers, for the members of the 4-H Clubs of today were to be the farmers of tomorrow.

State President Talks.
Edward J. Chaffee, state president, was presented and spoke of the things which the State Holstein Association had accomplished for the dairymen. This benefit was not shared by the Holstein breeders but by all dairymen, and one of the things which the Holstein Association was working for was for the general improvement of the dairy industry in the state. He spoke of the good work which had been accomplished in the direction of standardization and referred to Mr. Baldwin as one of the men who had been instrumental in bringing this about. He referred to the meeting which had taken place between Commissioner Baldwin, members of the New York health board, the big distributors and the Holstein dairymen and of the accomplishments which had been gained. Urging further cooperation, a bigger membership among dairymen he predicted that still bigger things would be accomplished. A Holstein breeder of merit he referred to the Holstein cow as "the dirt farmer's best friend" and said that if a study was made of state records it would be found that Holsteins held a large percentage of the state records. This was one of the reasons why about 4% of the cows in New York state were "black and white."

4-H Club Dairy Work.

Following Mr. Chaffee, Raymond V. O. DuBois, a director of the 4-H Club Association of Ulster county, was presented and made a report on 4-H Club dairy work, and announced the awards to 4-H Club members who have completed their dairy projects for 1934. These awards carried a check and certificate of award to the members. Only one member was present to receive his award, but this was due to the severe rain storm which kept many away.

Mr. DuBois stated that the checks and awards were given 4-H members who kept good records of their 4-H dairy projects during the past year. These records included registration names and numbers of the sire and dam as well as the Holstein letter that the member is raising. It also includes the production records of cows in milk and the production record of the dam. Feed, pasture, breeding and veterinarian records and costs are also included.

The awards are given by the New York State Holstein Association to 4-H members who have been unable to show their heifers at the State Fair.

Mr. DuBois gave a brief resume of 4-H Holstein Dairy projects in the county. At present there are 31 4-H dairy members enrolled and they owned 48 head of cattle, 46 pure breeds and only 2 grades. Twenty members own 27 head of registered Holsteins. Of these members 14 are organized into two Holstein calf clubs. One is the Pioneer Calf Club of the Wallkill Valley under the leadership of B. H. Decker and Redland Club in the Rondout Valley under the leadership of Julius Kroas.

Production records on all 4-H cows in production has been emphasized during the past three years, he said. There are now 17 animals owned by 15 members that have freshened and are producing. Of this number production records are being kept on all but two animals. These records are compiled each month in the county office. During the past four months the average monthly production of these 4-H cows has been 1066 pounds of milk and 33.2 pounds of butterfat. The members whose Holstein cows have been on the honor roll for production of the 40 pounds of butterfat or more are Lewis Bolce of Lake Katrine, Gerald DuBois of New Paltz, Roger Bolce of Lake Katrine.

Three members owning Ayrshires. They also made honor roll records. They are Clifford and Arthur Birch and Leo Mallory, all of Wallkill.

Next Thursday Mr. DuBois announced the Wallkill Valley 4-H Clubs would broadcast at noon over station WGNV at Chester. Ben Decker will introduce the five speakers who are Florence and Thelma Tucker, Harriett Meredith and Leo Mallory of Wallkill and DuBois Jenkins of New Paltz.

Mr. DuBois report was very cordially received by the members of the Ulster County Holstein Club. After this serious matter had been attended to Mr. DuBois presented the Rev. G. S. Wulschlienger, pastor of the Reformed Church of New Paltz. In presenting the speaker Mr. DuBois said the pastor would talk on "Lesser serious matters. Being introduced as a "humorous speaker before the main speaker of the evening," the Rev. Wulschlienger proceeded to live up to the announcement of the toastmaster and gave a very enlightening talk, closing with a serious thought for the members to carry home.

Talk by Mr. Baldwin

Mr. Baldwin, former commissioner of the Department of Agriculture and Markets at Albany and a past president of the State Holstein Association, was then presented. He told of many things which the State Association had done for the benefit of all dairymen and referred to the standardization matter which Mr. Chaffee had touched upon. This was one of the accomplishments of the past year and he said this one thing was of benefit to all breeders. This year there is in the state the largest membership in the State Holstein Association of any year since its organization. He urged the Ulster county members to send as delegates to the national convention at Seattle real Holstein breeders as only having delegates who were actually interested in Holstein cows could the best program be put forth. New York state now has 18 delegates.

Mr. Baldwin referring to the time when he was in state service at Albany, said that the Advisory Council of Agriculture and Markets had been of great aid to him in doing the best possible for the farmers of the state. He said that through the aid of enterprising farmers, men who knew the business of dairying and farming, his department at Albany had been able to build up an organization which could really help the farmer. When he went out of office he said his department had been in most excellent condition and he paid a glowing tribute to Peter G. Ten Eyck, who succeeded him as commissioner.

He issued a word of caution and advice to the dairymen of the county. He advised them that they knew their farms and farm problems better perhaps than government agencies and he warned them not to lean too heavily on government aid.

"Members of the New York Holstein-Friesian Association can be considered as an advance class of dairy farmers who understand thoroughly the fundamentals and appreciate the power of cooperative action," said Mr. Baldwin. He urged them to bind themselves closer together through cooperation. "They know that fundamentals do not change and they have little faith in fairies, magicians or the ability of so-called super men in government in changing basic principles." He urged the need of keeping good cattle and said that he did not believe the New York farmer was in favor of destroying any kind of food, even milk. A campaign to get people to use more fluid milk would take care of the surplus and reduction of herds to decrease production he did not advocate.

In part Mr. Baldwin said: "Today government is attempting to regulate the dairy industry of New York state. We will admit that regulation by the state as a permanent activity is a failure unless some means of gaining more power over the industry and the entire shed is secured from the federal government. Government control demands more power, uniform regulation, and better enforcement to be effective. "With the granting of more power by the government, the dairyman naturally gives up more of his liberties and former rights to use his initiative and best judgment in the management of his farm. Too many are already expecting more from the government than can be secured, and they are becoming weaklings by sitting idly by and relying on the government's doing for them things that they could better do for themselves. Government regulation tends toward supporting inefficiency. "Government of the people, especially in a country where the great majority live in the cities and are consumers rather than producers, can never be expected to do for the producers what the producers could easily do for themselves through cooperation one with the other. "There is a natural New York milk shed and its location can not easily be changed. We need not worry about others meeting health requirements and producing more cheaply than can New York state dairymen if they apply the best known methods. With their nearness to market, they have a distinct advantage that can not be taken from them. "New York state dairymen could have cost of production plus a reasonable profit on the fluid milk and cream that is used in these markets if they would cooperate one with the other and share equally in the better market. They will never receive it if they depend on government regulations alone. "Solution of present-day problems will be found by every individual using his initiative and best ability in conquering the problems that are within his control and then by joining with his associates in cooperative action to solve the problems that are beyond the individual's control." Mr. Baldwin said that the danger of today is in too much dependence and faith in the government's being a super agent that can successfully relieve the individual of all responsibilities. It should be remembered, he said, that fundamentals do not change and that economy of production and better distribution are still the ever-present problems. Control legislation in New York had done much good, he said, but the remedy is to get better cooperation and to control the surplus of milk. The cities, he said, could never prosper until the farmer does. He urged closer cooperation between farmers and said that the farmer was better acquainted with his individual problem than the government and that therefore they were better to solve these same problems.

Report of the Club.

Fred DuBois, Jr., secretary of the Ulster Holstein Club, gave a brief report of the activities of the club and urged for a bigger membership.

Fred DuBois, Sr., said that Ulster county was frequently referred to as a fruit county. This was truly a fruit county but in an analysis of figures it was found that fruit came third and that dairying was first with an annual income of over two millions of dollars, next came poultry with an income of a little less than two millions and fruit came third with about a million and a half each year in income.

Mr. Chaffee said that Poughkeepsie had extended an invitation to the State Holstein Association to hold its annual meeting in Poughkeepsie but that would be decided by the board of directors. However, if the annual meeting did come to Dutchess county he urged the Ulster county members to attend the sessions and he said he hoped that Dutchess county would be able to have votes enough to bring the convention there.

John Beatty, who missed his first meeting last year since the Ulster County Club was formed, was welcomed back into the fold and the members expressed their hope that his health would permit him to attend future meetings for a long time. Five counties, Schoharie, Dutchess, Albany, Orange and Ulster county were represented at the meeting.

Members of the 4-H Clubs present were asked to stand and introduce themselves and announce their club affiliations.

Following an announcement by Mr. DuBois that the Ulster County Agricultural Society would again hold its annual fair here on August 6, 7 and 8 at the new armory the meeting adjourned.

Plan to Plant Relief Gardens Here May 1

Although Catskills Are Covered With Snow and Ice Formed Here Last Night, Plans are Going Ahead on the Relief Garden Project of the Local ERB.

The peaks of the Catskill Mountains are snowcapped, and during the night ice formed here, but that fact is not halting the plans of the local emergency relief bureau for the garden project to be held this summer. Under present plans it is expected that planting will be started the first of May. Under the project as approved there will be 175 municipal gardens and 350 home gardens in the city.

The municipal gardens will be located on land owned by the Kingston Lumber Company along the Esopus creek. This land was used last year and it will be possible to raise even better gardens on it this summer as the land was plowed under last fall and will be thoroughly fertilized.

Those who are on the relief rolls of the city and desire to have a garden this summer should apply at once at the ERB headquarters.

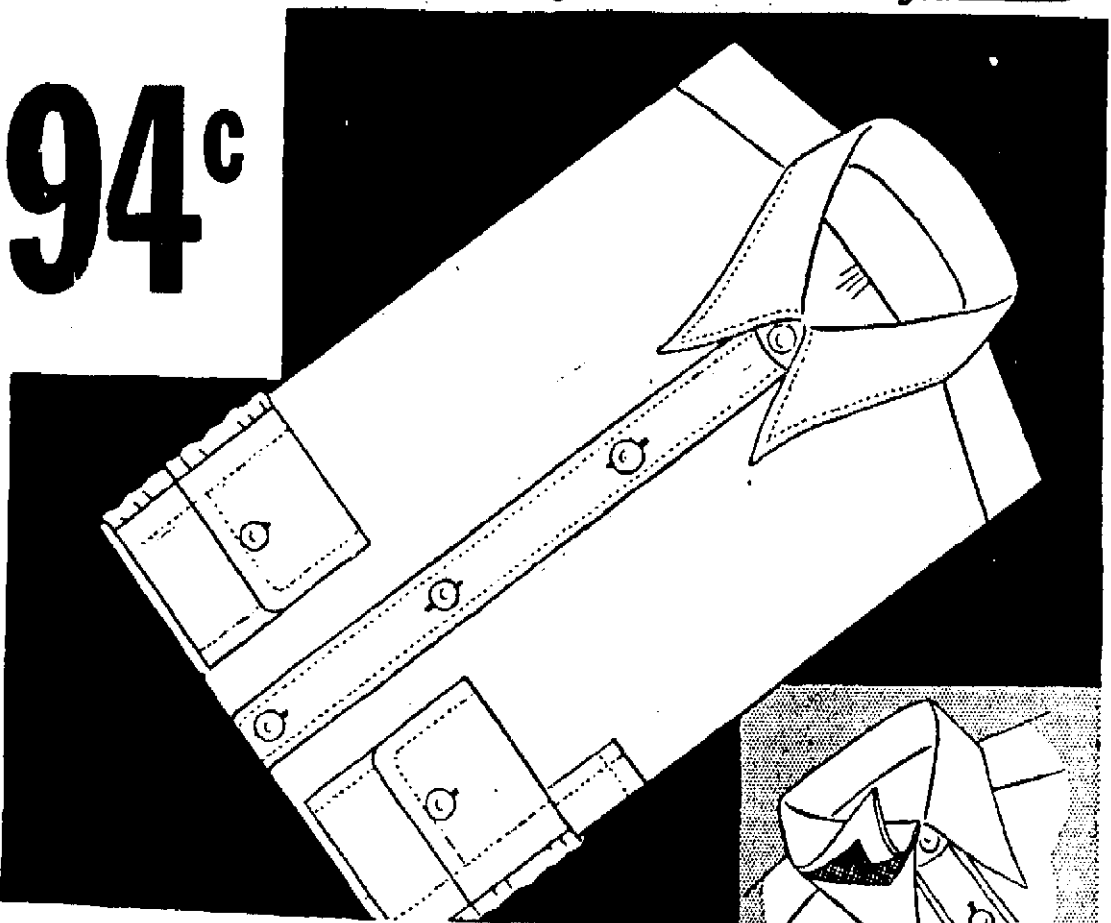

Roy Jacobs will again have charge of the garden project.

Stories of matrimonial bust-ups at Hollywood are not news any more. Just routine publicity.

BOWLING SCORES

New York, April 16 (P)—The lightweight division lacked a champion today, but Barney Ross, retiring from the throne after one successful title defense, may be back later to annoy the 135-pounders.

Under suspension here for failing to meet Lou Ambers of Herkimer, N. Y., Ross informed the State Athletic Commission he was relinquishing the title because he no longer could make the weight without weakening himself.

Then he announced he would meet Jimmy McLarnin for the welterweight championship here for Mike Jacobs' 29th Century Club, probably on May 28.

It was there that boxing observers began to ponder. They figured that a third meeting between Ross and McLarnin, in view of their two close battles last year, would draw at least $250,000. They figured that Ross perhaps preferred to take the McLarnin bout first without risking loss of prestige in an encounter with Ambers, the No. 1 challenger.

They figured also that should Ross regain the welterweight title, or even make a good showing against McLarnin, he would be in a splendid spot to return to the lightweight class in time to challenge the new champion, posting a forfeit as a guarantee that he could make the class limit of 135 pounds.

In any case, they pointed to the fact that Ross made 136½ pounds for his successful junior welterweight title defense against Henry Woods in Seattle last week. The weight limit for the synthetic junior welterweight class is 140 pounds.

Just what will be done about the vacant lightweight title remains to be seen.

The Ins and Outs of Boxing

A Series of Stories

By Vince Coffey

TODAY: SOME LOCAL PUGILISTS.

Some of the boys who contributed their share to making boxing the popular sport it now is in Kingston: Eddie Cashion, who about 25 years ago had a large following throughout New York state because of his activities as a wrestler, boxer, bicycle rider and a referee.

Mike Cashman, proprietor of a tavern on Broadway, boxed Jack Fitzsimmons, Tony Kohl, Frank Sheridan, Joe Madden and others. Mike was a smart boxer and had a left hand that could pick flies from the air.

Jimmy Howard fought such boys as Bill Jackson, Chuck Connors, Johnny Troy, Jimmy Mulligan, Willie Spencer and others. I never heard of Jimmy being knocked off his feet or losing a decision.

At Camp Dix during the war Jimmy challenged anybody in the camp. Over a hundred thousand men were there.

Frank Sheridan, who conducts a plumbing business in this city, is remembered for the bouts he had with Mike Cashman, Warren Herwig, Jim Buchanan and Battling Walker. During the Walker bout Frank dislocated his shoulder in the seventh round but carried on and finished the 10 rounds as scheduled. That was a rare exhibition of courage.

Frank was an expert at punching the bag.

Johnny Daley of Rosendale was a great little boxer at 112 pounds. His opponents were usually 15 to 20 pounds heavier than he. He beat such good boys as Young Vogel and Kid Wilson of New York.

Jim Buchanan, now living in Providence, R. I., was a finished boxer. He and Frank Sheridan fought for the welterweight championship of Ulster county. Jim was in town

Baseball Meeting Thursday Evening

Another meeting of the City Baseball League will be held Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in the court room of City Judge Bernard A. Culliton, president of the league. It is important that all managers of teams attend the session at which important matters will be discussed.

Famous War Songs

"Tipperary," the most famous marching song of the war, was composed on January 31, 1902, and sung the same evening at the Grand theater, Stalybridge, Lancashire. The composer of "Madelon," the French song which was most popular among the "pollus," was awarded the Legion of Honor, though this song never enjoyed the vogue of "Tipperary." The latter was regarded as a "second British National Anthem" by the French, and also, apparently, by the Americans.

No Public Gas Masks

Copenhagen, Denmark, April 16 (P)—The government commission which investigated the problems of protection against air raids advised today against issuing gas masks to the public, recommending that the populace resort to the greater safety of higher floors of buildings instead of cellars.

Athens Once Capital of Entire Civilized World

Athens was once the capital of the civilized world. It is the most famous of all hills, the ruin-strewn Acropolis. The Acropolis, observes a writer in the Chicago Tribune, was the site of the early city which grew into Athens. It was fortified more than a thousand years before Christ. Part of the original walls still stand here the semi-mythical kings ruled and sat in judgment. Here under Theseus the city on the hill united with the villages that had sprung up on the plain below. Here was laid the foundation of the democracy that is still making its way westward around the world.

In 480 B. C. the Acropolis fell before the armies of Xerxes, who was later defeated in the naval battle of Salamis and he went back to Persia.

In the same century the hill saw Sophocles, Euripides, Socrates, Aristophanes, and Pericles rise to immortality. The following century brought on the flight of Philip of Macedonia after he had paved the way for his son, Alexander the Great.

As the town of the greatest sculptors, poets, and dramatists of antiquity and the seat of the schools of philosophy founded by Plato and Aristotle Athens subsisted for centuries on the intellectual capital it had stored up during the golden age.

For 2000 years Athens has owed its prosperity to the fame achieved in its early days. It is still reaping the harvest of the intangible factors on which the empire of the mind is built: learning and literature, art and eloquence, philosophy and democracy. Students go there from all over the world, and the visitor stands in awe before the might and majesty of things immaterial.

Origin of Croquet

Croquet, which was one of the most popular of games as early as seventy-five years ago and which is still played in many sections of the country, has its origin in an old French pastime called "jeu de maille." It originated in southern France during the Thirteenth century and was introduced into England. During the reign of the Stuarts jeu de maille became very popular. Later the game was modified in France into croquet and known for the next three-quarters of a century. England quickly took up the revived game and shortly after that it became a popular pastime in America.

Coal Is Salvaged From Lake Michigan Bottom

Gladstone, Mich.—Free coal for all who are ingenious enough to salvage it from the waters of Lake Michigan on the Gladstone waterfront has been brought nearly 200 men out on the ice each day this winter. Coal docks of a shore site here for 40 years and at one time nearly 6000 tons of coal were dumped in the water when the docks caught fire. Salvagers use a wire basket with a heavy iron bar to hold it rigid.

URGED U. S. TO GRAB CENTER OF EARTH

Symmesites Expected to Enter at North Pole.

Washington—Itelles of one of the most fantastic episodes in American history have just come to light at the Smithsonian institution. One of these is a rare broadside, dated September 14, 1822, by Capt. John Cleves Symmes, a retired army officer, in which he advanced the argument that the earth was hollow and that a ship might sail into the interior through a "hole" at the north pole. This was one of several circulars and newspaper articles on the subject distributed to institutions of learning all over the world between 1818 and 1829.

Symmes at that time was urging the United States government to send out an expedition to "discover" the inside world and claim it for the American people under the patronage of "himself, his wife and her ten children." It would be, he argued, with considerable plausibility in the light of the geophysics of the day, a warm, fertile, and probably inhabited world almost as great in extent as the outer surface of the globe.

Symmesites Were Organized.

All this seems incredibly fantastic today. But at the time groups of Symmesites were organized all over the United States, and several petitions were presented to congress asking that such an expedition actually be organized. All the petitions were laid on the table by congress, some of them with considerable "kidding." There were, however, two tangible results.

First, the interest aroused in exploration by the Symmesites may have been one of the factors which led to the Wilkes exploring expedition, which resulted, in turn, in the first discovery of land below the Antarctic circle, according to many competent geographers.

Second, the Symmes scheme furnished the basis for one of the most stirring tales of Edgar Allan Poe, "The Adventures of Arthur Gordon Pym."

Pamphlet Offers Objections.

With the broadside is an age-old, lowed pamphlet—almost ludicrously cautious and circumspect to the reader of today—in which objections are raised to the ideas of the former army officer.

With the broadside is Symmes' map of "Symmesia," the supposed continental mass beyond and below the northern "verge" of the world, with the "Symmes river" pouring southward into the Atlantic at about the location of Davis' strait. This would be, Symmes said, by far the greater river in the world, since it was one of the main outlets of the oceans of the interior into the oceans of the exterior.

Although the Symmesite enthusiasts antedated the establishment of the Smithsonian institution, the material probably was sent to the old Columbian institute in Washington as formed part of the Smithsonian heritage from that establishment.

Pittsburgh Loses Old Title as the Smoky City

Pittsburgh, Pa.—No longer will Pittsburgh be referred to as the Smoky City, if the words of visitors can be taken literally.

That people of other cities no longer look upon the iron city as a smoky dirty metropolis became known when Elwood Farrar of Lexington, Ky., came here to discuss methods of smoke regulation and abatement for that city.

"Pittsburgh," Farrar said, "may have been the Smoky City of yesterday, but right now it is a step ahead of a dozen places known for their cleanliness."

Farrar recalled a visit he made here ten years ago and recollected the great pall of smoke which hung over the city at that time.

"That really was smoke," he said.

New Gold Strike Made in Province of Alberta

Edmonton, Alta.—High-grade gold being unearthed over a wide area by the new Beaverledge gold strike on the north shore of Lake Athabasca, and extensive plans for development are being laid by various companies, prospectors and mining experts arriving here report.

It is predicted the new field will experience a greater degree of activity than the Great Bear lake field near summer.

Prospectors reported that samples ranging from one to thirty ounces of gold per ton are being found in the new gold field.

Midwest Suffers Return of Winter

Chicago, April 16 (P).—A sudden return of wintry weather sent temperatures tobogganing in the middle-west and brought fears today that fruit crops would be damaged.

Snuggled pots were smoldering in various parts of the cold belt which dipped as far south as the Missouri Ozarks and apparently was spreading rapidly eastward. Slowly rising temperatures, predicted by the weather bureau for the central west today, were counted on by growers, however, to rout the menace before serious crop damage results.

Snow flurries were general in north and central Indiana. It was 38 above zero at Louisville at midnight, with a cold wind blowing down from the north. Temperatures were skidding in western Pennsylvania, reaching the low twenties. Snow flurries were general throughout the area, and fears were entertained for fruit crops.

Two and one-half inches of snow fell in Cleveland. A high wind shipped the snow, making driving perilous for motorists. Peach and cherry growers of northern Ohio predicted heavy crop losses. Cincinnati reported a light snow, driven by a high wind.

Detroit reported the temperature had sunk to 20. Fruit growers in southwestern Michigan said only a quick rise in temperature would save their crops.

A two-inch snow blanketed western Maryland, with northwest gales threatening a continuation of the cold snap.

INVENTS DEVICE TO KEEP SHIPS AFLOAT

Frenchman Offers Contraption to Government.

Paris.—Sinking ships and disabled submarines unable to rise to the surface are a thing of the past.

This is the claim made by a French naval engineer who believes he has discovered a device that will keep any ship afloat and bring any submarine to the surface in a few minutes.

"My discovery will revolutionize ship-building throughout the world," Julien Guillaume, the inventor, told newspaper men and newsreel cameramen as he demonstrated his discovery in a flooded quarry near Paris recently.

Guillaume showed them over his ten-ton motor-yacht and bade them thoroughly inspect every nook and cranny to make sure there was no trickery. But he refused to show a small watertight chamber where his machinery was installed.

Then, dressed in riding breeches and a golf jacket, Guillaume opened the sea-cocks and entered the water-tight compartment.

The yacht gradually sank to the bottom of the quarry, five yards under the surface, and settled down.

In about five minutes there was a slight disturbance of the water and the spectators saw the yacht rising horizontally. Its mast split the surface and then the cabin. Finally the yacht came to rest with deck awash but with the cabin door above the surface. Guillaume emerged smiling and perfectly dry.

"My invention is perfectly simple, economical, and can be fitted to the largest liner afloat or to the smallest motor yacht," he stated.

"No matter how disabled a ship is, with gaping holes in the sides, providing my discovery is unharmed it will keep the ship on the surface."

Guillaume stated that government experts had consistently ignored his requests to them to examine his discovery. He was not daunted, however. He remembers how Fitch tried in vain to get the French government interested in the steamboat.

King's Archives Found; Corroborate the Bible

Jerusalem.—One of the most important corroborations of the Bible during the period of the Kingdom of Judah was made known here with the discovery at Tel Adduwei, midway between Beersheba and Gaza, of archives with Hebrew inscriptions which give the names of the most famous Israelites mentioned in Scriptures.

The discovery was made by a British archaeological expedition headed by J. L. Starkey. Hitherto discovery of written documents of the biblical period has been rare, and pottery usually has been the only available witness of the Bible stories. Hitherto the archeology of the period of the kings has disclosed only two or three inscriptions.

Tel Adduwei was known in ancient times as Lachish.

The remains of the Kingdom of Judah period would date back to between 900 and 600 B. C. Outstanding discoveries are the archives with Hebrew inscriptions, apparently belonging to the leading prince of Judah, which were engraved on porcelain in the ancient Hebrew script in choice biblical language and of a date prior to the first temple era.

Part of these inscriptions appears to be an exchange of correspondence between the viceroy of Lachish and the king of Jerusalem, since the names of famous Israelites of that period who are mentioned in scriptures also occur in the tablets. The find is regarded by Palestinian archeologists as one of the most valuable ever made in this country.

Texas Farmers Trick Crows in Grain Fields

Holland, Texas.—A novel way of killing crows has been tried out by farmers here, who report that it has worked successfully.

The farmer takes some shelled corn and threads each kernel with a long horsehair. He scatters this corn about the fields where crows are frequently found and withdraws to await results.

The crows, according to the reports, eat the corn but are unable to swallow the horse hairs. The crows after a time develop fits of frenzy trying to get the horse hairs out of their mouths, turn over on their backs and die of fatigue.

One farmer said he counted 50 dead birds the first time he tried the method.

Horse Has Long Life
Waukon, Iowa.—Ed Dunn of Rockville, Iowa, says that his horse, Belle, which died recently, was forty-one years old, being born in 1894. Horses rarely live to be thirty-five years or older. Belle was Dunn's favorite horse for work about the farm.

Corbett, Ont.—Within ten miles of this village, birthplace of the Dionne quintuplets, lives a man who spent more than 100 years in this district before ever being mentioned in the news. While world interest centers on the quintuplets, John Birch is almost overlooked, although he is believed to be the oldest man in Canada. ## IN THE REIGN OF GEORGE V

2. A King and Queen are Crowned

A year of mourning for Edward VII ended, King George V and his consort, Queen Mary, were formally crowned in Westminster Abbey with traditional pomp on June 22, 1911. This photograph shows the royal couple in the gorgeous coronation robes they wore that day. King George's first big reform took place as he recited the oath of office, for he omitted from the centuries-old formula phrases which denounced the Roman Catholic mass as "superstitious and idolatrous." The king's silver jubilee is celebrated this year.

WOOLWORTH HEIR DENIES ENGAGEMENTS

New York, April 16 (P).—Woolworth Donahue, dapper heir to 10-cent-store millions, is stepping clear of conflicting statements by a British actress and a New York society blueblood about his love.

Miss Wendy Barrie said in Hollywood that Donahue had telephoned her from Palm Beach, Fla., to ask whether it would be all right for him to announce his engagement to Miss Dorothy Fell, a former fiancée.

Miss Fell, emphatically denying that she would marry Donahue, suggested in New York he might have called Miss Barrie "so that she would stop telling people she was engaged to him."

Fined for Evasion
Folkestone, Eng., April 16 (P).—For attempting to evade duties on several articles of clothing, including dresses stated to be gifts from Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivant, Mrs. Evelyn Violet Jean Kennerley, an American of British birth living in Chelsea, was fined £211 ($1,000) in police court today.
